LOU ANN GOOD

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Top awards, a coronation, and entertainment by Jerry Palen, cowboy and cartoonist, dominated the agenda at the Cattlemen's Banquet on April 8.

The 20th annual banquet was held at the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Beef Exposition.

Nichole Willwert wears the crown as the Cattlemen's Queen. She will be assisted in promotional duties by Sherry Ishman from Armstrong County, who is princess for the organization for the past two years.

Both Nichole and Sherry are dairy and animal science students at Penn State.

Nichole, who is from Red Lion, was a former FFA county and chapter president. She received numerous awards, including the DeKalb horse proficiency and beef production awards and the top

TIMONIUM, Md. — The twenty-fourth Maryland State Holstein Show, a "Production Recognized Show" sponsored by the Maryland Holstein-Friesian Association, was held last Saturday at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium, Md.

Judge Ronald Long of Plain City, Ohio evaluated a total of 244 entries with 156 of those entries in the junior show. Anita Hill, secretary and treasurer of the Maryland State Holstein Association said, "This was our largest show since 1988."

The senior and grand champion of show was Peace and Plenty Mark Lexine, a senior 3-year-old bred and owned by Peace and Plenty Farm, the Joe Schwartzbeck family of Union Bridge. The 3-year-old, who also took the award for best bred and owned Maryland animal was sired by Walkway Chief Mark.

Advisory Board Talks Deepen Over Nutrient Regulations

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Discussions by the state Nutrient Management Advisory Board slowed Wednesday as members began deliberating the finer points of a draft of proposed nutrient management regulations.

The 15-member board — created by the Nutrient Management Act to review and provide comment on proposed nutrient management regulations — met Wednesday in Room 309 of the headquarters building of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, in Harrisburg.

Because of the intensity of discussion, the board was not able to work through the topics listed for the morning's agenda, and actually continued working a half-hour beyond scheduled adjournment to finish discussions started in the STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The Agricultural Advisory Council met with college officials Wednesday in an active role to help identify public policy issues of relevance to the college and to ag industry. Earl Fink, council president, conducted the meeting.

In the morning session, the group was divided into segments, according to interest, to brainstorm and summarize what the participants deemed important issues that face agriculture and the supporting industries. From each group segment, five "most important" issues were brought back to the total group for consideration. These issues are summarized in the following statements:

- Education is needed on points of food safety and a balance of fact sources is needed.
- Ag extension funding needs to focus on production agriculture.
- Air and water issues: how to comply.
- Tax issues, especially property tax.
- Regulatory burdens on the food and production agriculture enterprises need consideration.
- Balance between traditional and biotech approaches to agriculture need to be addressed.
- Cooperation between various ag groups needs to be strengthened.
- Work needs to be done on the public perception of ag.
- Educational opportunities that allow for cross reference between ag and other departments, such as

A few Amish farmers were working the fields in Lancaster County on Monday. The push is on to get spring work under way even though rains and late winter snows have put many activities on hold for a few weeks. In the photo above, taken on Eby Road, east of Monterey, the ground was well drained and looked to be turning nicely and didn't look too wet. But after the rains across the state later in the week, fieldwork is on hold again. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, April 13, 1994

NATIONAL EGG MARKET-AT A GLANCE: Prices were unchanged to lower on the large sizes in the Midwest, unchanged on the balance. The market tone was steady to weak, and remained cautious in all areas. Demand was mixed from light to occasionally fairly good, mostly fair. Supplies were adequate to ample, and available. Breaking stock supplies were adequate from regular sources, and interest for additional supplies was limited. Light type hen offerings were adequate to ample for the light at best demand, and the undertone was barely steady to weak.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, April 13, 1994

Trucklot buying interest was quite irregular. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts with tenders were in close balance with current needs. Asking prices and trading was reported at higher prices. Heavier breast cutlets without tenders packed in trays or ice were available and slow to clear. Sized product was short of needs. That side of the market was steady. Line run breasts were extremely tight. Shippers asked sharply higher market related prices. Some product was booked at the higher prices but some buyer resistance was noted. Most dark meat items traded at steady prices. Wings were short of needs, prices trended higher.

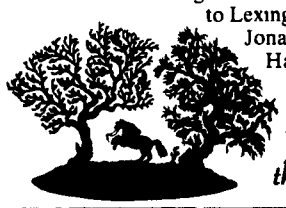
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

APRIL 18-24, 1994

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK.

BY BOAT, HORSE, AND FOOT

One if by land, two if by sea" was the now-famous code for the lantern signal. The British advanced by land, but Paul Revere's journey started "by sea." Around 10:30 P.M. on April 18, 1775, friends rowed him across the Charles River, in the very shadow of the British ships. Revere then safely rode to Lexington where he was joined by Dr. Samuel Prescott and William Dawes. Halfway to Concord, Revere was captured and nearly met his end Luckily, the British abandoned him when shots rang out from Concord. Revere walked back to Lexington, reaching the home of Rev. Jonas Clark by 2 A.M., where John Hancock and Sam Adams reassured him he had been successful — the patriots were ready!



Where the heart is right, there is true patriotism.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Store nuts and washers in the workroom on an extra-large safety pin or key ring.

EARTHWISE

Many people have discovered that a small lifestyle change can have a large environmental impact. Consider cloth table napkins They don't have to be Irish linen — you can make your own from cotton remnants, or use inexpensive bandana kerchiefs One family we know uses small guest towels purchased at a close-out sale If each person has his own napkin ring, whether it's homemade or engraved silver, the napkins can be used for several meals before laundering.

RHUBARB CRISP

4 cups diced rhubarb
½ cup white sugar
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter

Mix together rhubarb and white sugar and place in greased 9x9-inch pan Combine remaining ingredients and mix well until crumbly, sprinkle over rhubarb Bake at 350° F for about 40 minutes or until rhubarb is tender and topping is golden brown Serve warm with ice cream.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Cloudy, rainy and mild, snowy and colder mountains; then sunny and cool.

SOUTHEAST: Sunny and warm, then colder, rain; milder, showers.

MIDWEST: Cold, snow, freezing rain; sunny and seasonable, then cold, rain and snow.

NORTHWEST: Clear and warm; cold and rainy, then sunny, warmer, and dry

SOUTHWEST: Clear and warm then colder and rainy.

OPINION

America Diverts To Underdeveloped Nation

In an effort that threatens the health and safety of every American, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has announced a plan that calls for the eventual banning of chlorine. According to the Putting People First March newsletter, EPA Administrator Carol M. Browner recently unveiled key elements of the Clinton Administration recommendations to reform the Clean Water Act.

The stated intention of the new rule is to reduce water pollution and one of the targeted "contaminants" is chlorine and chlorinated compounds. In the recommendations for reauthorization of the Clean Water Act, the EPA is advised to develop a national strategy for substituting, reducing or prohibiting the use of chlorine and chlorinated compounds. The objective of those "environmentalists" behind this move is to ban all uses of chlorine, including chlorination of water and the use of chlorine to disinfect treated sewage.

A report this week in the Wall Street Journal said that EPA has acted to speed treatment of sewage that overflows in rains. Its new procedure is aimed at expediting treatment of sewage that flows into rivers, lakes and streams during heavy rains. The plan addresses "combined sewer overflow," a problem that often occurs during rainstorms when sewer systems connected to stormwater drains overflow and empty into waterways. Although such overflow is illegal under the 1972 Clean Water Act, EPA has been vague about how cities should deal with the problem.

According to the report, combined sewers are found in 1,100 communities around the nation. Under the new procedures, EPA will not require "secondary" biological treatment of sewage overflow in treatment plants, provided such overflows occur no more than four times a year and provided cities perform "primary" treatment, such as disinfecting the water and removing solids on 85 percent of the overflow before it empties into waterways.

Two revealing points should be noted from this report. First, with all those towns and cities pouring untreated sewage into the streams and lakes, agriculture is obviously not the only non-point source of contamination in the water environment of our nation. And two, the best way and maybe the only know way to "disinfect" the water from sewage overflow is with chlorine.

Countless studies have shown the chlorination of water is one of the major factors in the increase in life expectancy of the US population since the turn of the century. Without chlorination, many diseases, such as cholera, would quickly develop. For those who hold animals sacred, it can be noted that a healthy water supply benefits animals too.

To us, the attempted ban on chlorine looks like a move to undermine the major health advantages we have had as Americans because of our advanced knowledge and technology. In addition, to ban chlorine would likely cause the loss of the environment we so much want to save. Hopefully, clear thinking will prevail before America diverts back to the status of an underdeveloped nation.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Deworm Pasture Heifers

According to Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, heifers that are plagued with parasites are unthrifty and less profitable.

When young heifers are pastured, the risk of them acquiring internal parasites is great, especially if the pastures were grazed by heifers the previous year.

To protect these heifers from internal parasites, they should be dewormed about three weeks after the initial grazing. Equally important is a second deworming about three to five weeks after the first deworming.

This time interval depends on label instructions of the deworming material you are using. Select a product that is effective against adult worms.

Consult your veterinarian for additional advice.

To Make Safety A Priority

In a recent issue of Agricultural Safety and Health News, Dennis Murphy, Penn State agricultural engineer, reminds us of the importance of making safety a priority in our farming operations.

He encourages us to take time to determine what hazards exists on your farm and then correct them.

Discuss safety with family members and anyone else who works on your farm. If you have children or grandchildren, establish rules about where they may and may not play. Also, keep dangerous chemicals and machines beyond their reach.

Consider the health and safety aspects of your work habits. Do you use appropriate personal protective equipment for dangerous jobs? Do you treat farm machinery with the respect it deserves, or do you place yourself at risk by cutting corners?

Farming remains the nation's riskiest job. To change this, every farmer needs to place a priority on safety.

Never assume that an accident cannot happen to you. Resolve to be aware of farm safety throughout the year and take appropriate actions to protect yourself and your loved ones.

To Keep Cows Eating Properly

When cows go off feed and suddenly lose a lot of flesh, they may develop fatty livers. This may further depress appetites, causing drops in milk production and placing cows at risk for ketosis.

Thus, it is very important to keep cows eating well before and after calving. Be sure their rations are properly balanced for both the dry period and early lactation. Feed high quality feeds that are fresh and palatable. Also, provide easy access to good quality water.

Giving cows propylene glycal may also help prevent fatty livers and ketosis. Just as important is minimizing stress on cows by making the transition from dry period to early lactation as smooth as possible.

Feather Prof's Footnote: "Quality is never an accident. It is always the result of high intention, sincere effort, intelligent direction, and skillful execution."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS "SACRIFICE" A DIRTY WORD?
April 17, 1994

Background Scripture
Romans 12
Devotional Reading
Philippians 2:1-4, 14-16, 4:8,9

There was a time when "sacrifice" was a perfectly good word that was used in polite conversation. I can even remember even hearing it in church from time to time.

But not any more. Something has happened to the word in the last several decades. It is not only unfashionable to speak in our society of making sacrifices, but there is something positively obscene associated with it. We live in an age when people are primarily interested in asserting, affirming and fulfilling themselves. The thought of sacrificing one's self for the sake of someone else seems to have gone out with the double standard in sexual morality.

When I was a youth, Romans 12:1-3 was one of the most popular and frequently used texts at the church camp I used to attend: "I appeal to you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship." What being a disciple of Jesus Christ was all about, we told each other, was nothing less than offering ourselves as living sacrifices to the Lord. I don't know how well we lived that ideal, but we believed it and thought that that was what our lives should be.

SELF REALIZATION

I realize that what has happened in the intervening years is not necessarily bad or wrong. Some people carried the concept of self-sacrifice into a morbid preoccupation with martyrdom in an age that rarely asked for it or even provided an opportunity for it. Self-acceptance and self-realization were concepts that needed to become part of our personal and public consciousness. But, as so often happens, we threw the baby out with the bathwater, as the old saying goes. We have emphasized the self to the exclusion of others — and that is not spiritually healthy either.

As in so many areas of life, the key is balance: self and others, not self vs. others. In fact, we can never truly fulfill our own selves without learning to give ourselves for the sake of others. When we live only for self, we find we can never fulfill our own potential. In George Bernard Shaw's play, Androcles and the Lion, Lavinia, a young Christian who is slated to die a martyr, says to the Roman captain: ". . . I have no doubt at all that I must die for something greater than dreams or stories." "But for what?" asks the Captain. "I don't know," Lavinia replies, "If it were for anything small enough to know, it would be too small to die for. I think I am going to die for God. Nothing else is real enough to die for."

SELF-SACRIFICE

Just as anything other than God is too little to die for, so anything other than God is too little to live for.

As Ellen Glasgow says, "Life will yield up its hidden sweetness . . . only when it is being sacrificed to something more precious than life." One cannot taste the "hidden sweetness" of life until or unless we are willing to offer our lives for "something more precious than life."

Most of us hold back from sacrificing ourselves because we are certain self-sacrifice will diminish us, will take something away from our own fulfillment. But in presenting yourself "as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God," you do not lose, not ultimately at least. You actually gain in the long run, because, like Jesus Christ, we reach our highest potential only when we are willing to give ourselves for "something more precious than life."

Yes, I know the world doesn't see it that way. But the world is wrong. "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind . . ." (12:2).

Self-sacrifice is not a dirty word, but the way to the fulfillment that society promises, but cannot deliver.

A Full Season Of Grass Control In Every Micro-Capsule.

If you could look inside a micro-capsule of Partner® herbicide, you'd see something remarkable. A full season's worth of grass control plus the added bonus of superior crop safety.

TIMED-RELEASE, SEASON-LONG GRASS CONTROL IN CORN AND BEANS.

Because of its unique encapsulated formula, Partner "meters out" grass control throughout the growing season. The kind of effective preemergent control you need to stop yield-robbing grasses like foxtails, fall panicum and barnyardgrass.

Plus, the timed-release action of Partner provides maximum crop safety. Especially when young plants are most susceptible to herbicide stress.

CONVENIENT DRY FORMULATION MIXES QUICKLY AND EASILY.

Unlike other grass herbicides, Partner comes in an easy-to-handle dry formulation. And while it mixes quickly and completely in your tank, there are no meters to mess with, no pumps to replace and no containers to rinse.

This year, ask your dealer for timed-release Partner herbicide from Monsanto.

Soil Test By Way Of Satellite? Computers Could Make It Happen

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Before long, soil experts believe, satellites orbiting the earth will be used to tell a farmer exactly what his field nutrient and pest management needs will be — down to the centimeter.

Technology is already being tested in which fields can be mapped, soil tested, and recommendations made without ever stepping foot onto the field.

A network of 24 satellites 10 miles in the sky, called the Global Positioning System (GPS), can now be used to map the boundaries of a farmer's field. Using computerized equipment which does soil analysis on the spot, data can be collected to map the entire nutrient and pesticide management scheme on a regular basis for farmers.

Equipment used for this effort was tested successfully on 35 acres of land at the Milton Hershey School farm on Thursday. Experts from Agway were on hand to set up the computerized equipment and demonstrate it to farmers, conservation district and extension personnel, and other ag industry representatives at the school as part of a pilot project established by Agway to test a field management service for farmers. The Hershey farm is one of Agway's Northeast test sites.

"The day of managing per strips in the field per foot will be here in the next decade," said Dr. David J. Pieczarka, director of crops marketing for the Agway Agriculture Group, which conducted the demonstration. "We're all learning right now how to use this technology."

Agway is looking at the tests and analyzing how farmers can utilize the improving technology to help fine-tune Agway's Edge Plant nutrient management plan for farmers. This plan provides "prescription recommendations per grid per field," said Pieczarka.

An FM signal is sent from the trailer tower to the mule.

Midwest farmers have been using this technology in full stride and with much success in the past two years, according to Pieczarka. There, "yield logger" equipment has been attached to combines to determine yield amounts in a specific area of an open, flat field. This data can also be logged permanently in a computer. But to use field mapping, farmers in the Northeastern states, particularly the Mid-Atlantic, have to learn to adapt its use to the challenges of strip- and contour-farming.

In the past, said Pieczarka, crop management for agriculture has been based on "averages," using the average of certain tests. But there are so many variables per a field that computer technology may be necessary to pinpoint specific areas in the field that need specific management. Using this equipment, areas of conern, such as weed or pest pockets, can be located.

"We'll be putting on material only where it needs to be put on instead of broadcasting the entire application the way we do now," said Pieczarka.

As the technology becomes more and more refined, like computers, price will continue to fall so that many farmers may soon be able to afford it, according to Pieczarka. The technology will put another tool into the hands of farmers to more effectively manage nutrients and pesticides in a way that could prove extremely cost-effective.

Agway is one of about six other companies, said Pieczarka, that is looking at this technology. Agway uses Applications Mapping software, teemed up with the 486 personal computers, to make use of the GPS network.

According to Pieczarka the GPS network (with about 6-7 individual satellites within the horizon at a given time) broadcasts two codes — military and civilian. The civilian code can be legally "adjusted" using differential correction so that mapping of fields can take place.

Through a combination of FM bandwidth determination and other computerized technology, a small ground cart, or "mule," runs the length of the field. Data is fed in turn to a 486 laptop computer mounted in the cab. Once a map is made, it can be filed permanently into an electronic database to be used as a future reference.

Right now, the technology, said Pieczarka, is accurate to between one and six feet. But the "next generation" of equipment is already being developed. "By this time next year, a new unit will bring us to within nine centimeters of accuracy," said Pieczarka.

While the computerized mapping technology is ahead of sprayer and applicator technologies, ag equipment companies are already working feverishly to develop variable rate technology. The GPS technology can map specific areas of a field that have specific nutrient, pH, pest, and other factors. In turn, farmers can adjust their computerized application and spreading equipment to the needs of specific sites in the field.

Farmers in the Midwest already use variable rate technology to apply certain nutrients in the field where they are needed for improved yield, and this has worked, according to Pieczarka.

In years to come, farmers can make use of variable rate technology (using such things as telescoping booms and computerized nozzles on sprayers) to deliver nutrients and pesticides only to specific regions as outlined in a carefully prepared plan.

To use this technology now, farmers would have to pay about $3-$8 (and perhaps up to $15 an acre for vegetable production) to use this technology, depending on what they are planning to do.

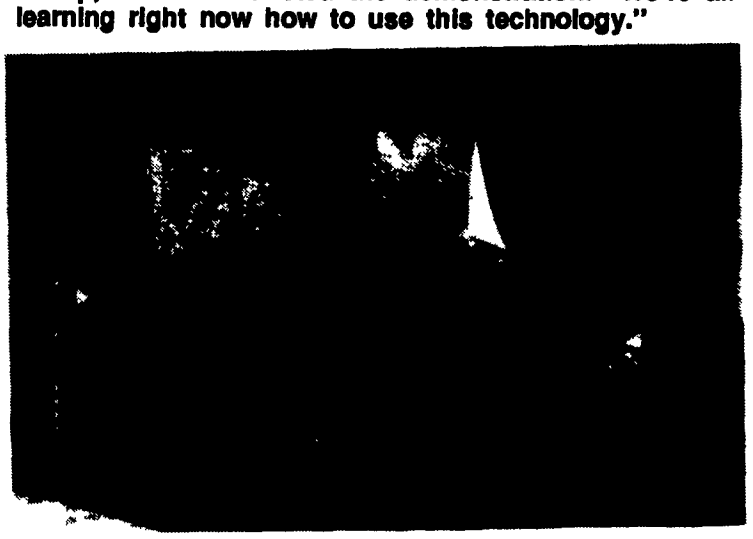
Agway has about 1,600 acres in the western part of Pennsylvania that it will soon be studying this technology on, according to Roy Aber, Agway crop specialist. The eastern part of the state, particularly Lehigh County, has 2,000 acres under study.

According to Pieczarka, most grids are mapped out in 10-20 acre increments, but in the Northeast area, the smallest grid workable now is five acres.

"Satellite technology will drive agriculture in the coming years," said Pieczarka.

A network of 24 satellites 10 miles in the sky, called the Global Positioning System (GPS), can now be used to map the boundaries of a farmer's field. Using computerized equipment which does soil analysis on the spot, data can be collected to map the entire nutrient and pesticide management scheme on a regular basis for farmers.

"The day of managing per strips in the field per foot will be here in the next decade," said Dr. David J. Pieczarka, director of crops marketing for the Agway Agriculture Group, which conducted the demonstration. "We're all learning right now how to use this technology."



Norman Miller, director of the Milton Hershey School agricultural science program, examines the computer used in the trailer. Field mapping equipment was tested successfully on 35 acres of land at the Milton Hershey School farm on Thursday.

Paul Stachowski, manager of crops research for Agway, looks at the grid, a map of the field generated via computer and satellite signals, using this 486 laptop computer.

Pieczarka shows the "differential connection computer" used to adjust the satellite signal for use in mapping.

Berks Teachers Learn Les[illegible]s

ANDY ANDREWS

UPPER BERKS COUNTY — "The students tell me, 'Mrs. Menet is going to the farm today, she has her jeans on!'"

Glenside Elmentary fourth grade teacher Mary G. Menet knows how important the lessons of "hands-on" experience can be.

Every year, during the special Ag In The Classroom Teacher Seminar, she takes back the lessons she's learned about agriculture and brings them to her class.

"I use everything," she said.

This year was no exception, as she reached out to feed "Josh," a 3-year-old purebred registered Angus bull out of the herd of Papa Farm, with the help of farm manager Brian Mohn.

Menet joined about 45 other teachers from 18 different Berks County schools, from kindergarten through grade 12, to visit three separate beef production and processing locations on Tuesday evening.

Teachers included history, science, art, and others from high school and general instructors from kindergarten through the elementary level.

The locations included a finishing operation, W.T. Palmer and Son, Shartlesville; Papa Farm, an Angus cow-calf farm managed by Brian and Karen Mohn, Strausstown; and a processor, Peters Bros. Meats, Lenhartsvill[illegible]

JOHN DEERE 40- TO 60-HP 5000 SERIES TRACTOR

These tractors pack a lot of value

Mowing, hauling, disking, loading, baling. You can't beat the value – or the versatility – of John Deere 5200, 5300, and 5400 Tractors.

Value starts with efficient engine design. The wet-sleeve 3-cylinder diesel engines deliver 40 to 60 horsepower with fuel-thrifty, dependable performance.

And unlike other tractors in this horsepower class, you get full rated horsepower at the standard 540-rpm PTO speed. You can pull balers and other PTO implements without worrying about your tractor bucking or stalling.

Need top traction in tough going? Add MFWD for extra pull and tight-turning maneuverability.

And with the highest standard hydraulic capacity in their class, 5000 Series Tractors help you lift more, faster. For fast, smooth shifting, choose the optional top-shaft-synchronized (TSS) transmission. Improved shuttle-shift capability makes it perfect for loader work.

Of course an important part of any value is the price. So visit your John Deere dealer and find out how little it takes for you to own a 40-, 50-, or 60-hp 5000 Series Tractor.

...s About Beef During Tour

Oley Valley. Reider said there are elements of how a farm operates and how animals use feed in the growth cycle that he can use in teaching high school science.

With the participation of the beef commodity promotion organizations, including the Berks Southeast Cattlemen's Association and the Pennsylvania Beef Council, there were demonstrations of how cow-calf and and finishing farms operate.

The Beef Council supplied handouts. In addition, a Beef Council nutritionist, Barbara Ford, spoke about the significance of using nutritional educational materials available from the Council as part of classroom activities.

Palmer and Son Farm

Bill Palmer helps manage the W.T. Palmer and Son farm in Shartlesville, which finishes out about 150 head of cattle a year. They maintain about 300 acres (280 tillable) and finish off Simmental/Angus crosses.

Palmer said his farm hosted the Farm-City Day on a weekend last November, of which 400 toured the facilities. "Some of them never saw a cow or steer before," he said. "They asked all kinds of questions."

Bill Palmer showed the teachers the types of feed used and provided information on how that feed is used by the animals at different stages of growth. Here he shows a container of soybeans.

Included in the tour was an explanation of the steps involved in stunning, cleaning, cutting, and further processing. Working on carcass is Rex Peters, and in foreground is Clyde Myers, Berks extension agent.

Rex Peters, center in white coat, was on hand to show the teachers how steers are stunned at the processing facility in Lenhartsville.

Berks Teachers Learn Lessons About Beef During Tour

Palmer showed the teachers the types of feed used and provided information on how that feed is used by the animals at different stages of growth. He showed them the calf barn and also the feedlot, where he answered a wide array of questions about the breeds he uses.

Papa Farm

Afterward, the group of teachers visited the Papa Farm, owned by Gilles Richard, a career consultant, north of Strausstown. The cow-calf farm, with 42 cows in the herd, including 14 replacement heifers, is managed by Brian and Karen Mohn.

The statuesque farm, situated near the foot of the Blue Mountains, includes 200 tillable acres. Mohn told the teachers that he grows about 130 acres of hay and 60 acres of corn, with the remainder soybeans.

Also, the Mohn family is involved in a small nursery business as part of the overall diversification of the farm to ensure its profitability.

"We try to diversify to make money," he told the tour group.

Stephanie DeNunzio, an art teacher from Holy Name High School, was impressed with the well-maintainted architecture of the farm and uses some of the information in her classes.

David Nace, fith grade teacher at Brandywine, was on hand to take back the lessons of the farm to the classroom and to obtain information and ideas to market seedstock Angus on his own small cow/calf operation.

After a meal sponsored by the cattlemen's association, the tour continued to the carefully maintained, fenced, rotational pasturing operation which borders the farm.

"The cows get hay all summer long," said Brian Mohn. He explained the intricacies of calculating feed for all the cows and calves while keeping costs down.

"The animals aren't organically raised, but are naturally raised," he said. Pastures are planted in a wide variety of grasses, including perennial ryegrass, timothy, bluegrass, and fescue.

"Rotational grazing saves producers money and provides a heavier animal at weaving time," said Mohn.

Peters Bros. Meats

Next, the group toured the Peters Bros. Meats facility in Lenhartsville.

Rex Peters was on hand to show the teachers how meat is slaughtered, cut, and prepared for the consumer.

Included in the tour was an explanation of the steps involved in stunning, cleaning, cutting, and further processing.

Included was a tour of the computerized smokehouse operation — including the sausage-making equipment.

"A big part of our business still is custom-butchering and mail order," he said. He offered free taste tests of the summer sausage and a "pigsfeet" preparation.

Classroom Series

The Teacher Ag In the Classroom Series is conducted annually through the Berks County Cooperative Extension, the county farm bureau, the chamber of commerce agribusiness council, and the farm-city council to bring commodities in this way into the classroom, said Clyde Myers, extension agent.

"I wish every county would have this type of program," said Myers. "It's sad that other counties don't do more of this type of thing — the promotion of agriculture to an important group of people, teachers. We could be missing the boat."

In the future, other commodity organizations, including dairy, swine, and poultry, will be represented.

The Berks County Extension also helps coordinate the Ag In the Classroom activities conducted throughout the county.

Barbara Ford, coordinator of the health/nutrition programs for the Pennsylvania Beef Council, showed the many different types of student instruction packages available. Many can be ordered through the Catalog Of Educational Materials flier, which supplies the materials from the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

Teachers who want information on how to obtain the educational materials can contact Ford at the Pennsylvania Beef Council, 4714 Orchard St., Harrisburg, PA 17109, (717) 545-6000.

"The animals aren't organically raised, but are naturally raised," said Mohn, top, center. Pastures are planted in a wide variety of grasses, including perennial ryegrass, timothy, bluegrass, and fescue.

Animal Housing Expo

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 1994 Animal Housing Expo will be held July 12-13 at the Lebanon Fair Grounds in Lebanon, Pa. The event is conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension in conjunction with local agribusinesses.

"The purpose of the expo is to help farmers in the Northeast learn more about animal housing concerns," says Dan McFarland, general chair of the expo and Penn State Cooperative Extension agent in York County.

More than 1,400 people attended last year's event to learn more about animal comfort, animal handling, building and remodeling, stall design and maintenance, ventilation, nutrient management and environmental regulations, financing, milking parlor designs, composting and more.

Nationally known experts will be on hand, and a variety of demonstrations and exhibits are planned. Howard Person of Michigan State University will discuss building designs that help to control rodents and birds. David Kohl of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University will review financial planning tools.

Veterinarian Lynn Sammons will discuss cattle treatment facilities. Stephen Spencer, professor of dairy science at Penn State, will explain new trends in milking system design and management.

The expo also attracts commercial exhibitors, providing an opportunity for farmers to see available products and services and to make contacts. Forty commercial exhibitors participated in last year's event. For more information about commercial exhibits, contact Joe Zook, exhibit chair, at 151 East Farmersville Road, Ephrata, PA 17522, (717) 354-4271.

Farm Programs Offer Advance Payments

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Producers may request an advance portion of the projected deficiency payment for wheat and feed grains when they enroll in the 1994 programs for these crops, according to Jenifer Minnich, county executive director of the Lebanon County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"The programs offer 50 percent of the estimated total deficiency payment rates for these crops in cash," Minnich said.

Estimated deficiency payment rates for the 1994 crops are 85 cents per bushel for wheat, 40 cents for corn, 46 cents for sorghum and 52 cents for barley.

Minnich said acreage devoted to conserving uses for deficiency payments under the optional 0-85/92 provisions of the wheat and feed grains programs will not be less than these rates.

The advance payment rates are 42.5 cents per bushel for wheat, 20 cents for corn, 23 cents for grain sorghum, and 26 cents for barley.

There is no set-aside (ACR) requirement for wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats, and barley. Program applications may be filed through April 29.

Pa. Scrapie Board Conducts Survey

COOPERSBURG (Lehigh Co.) — The Pennsylvania Voluntary Scrapie Certification Board has issued a survey polling the concerns of 1,340 Pennsylvania sheep producers.

The survey, the first of its kind in the country, seeks to establish how sheep producers view the current program and how they feel the program could be improved to better serve their needs.

The results of the survey will be very important to policy formation. The survey is an opportunity for producers to voice their concerns to their state board with proposed suggestions for improvements.

The survey results will be invaluable as a way of determining grass-roots feedback and should benefit not only producers in this state but other states as well because the results will be shared with the Voluntary Scrapie Boards across the country.

Market Holds Annual Meeting

CHELTENHAM, Md. — The Southern Maryland Regional Farmers Market (SMRFM) held its annual meeting on March 16.

Five board of director members were elected. They are John Dennison, Rod Parker, Patty Ptucha, Steve Walter, and Fred Walzel.

Chairman Russell Schlagel presented an overview of the performance of the 1993 market season. During the 1993 season, the wholesale auction market sold more than $391,000 worth of produce, bringing the five-year sales total to $1.6 million.

According to Shlagel, the market has seen substantial growth since its beginning and will continue to grow as more farmers diversify into alternative agriculture.

The 1994 season will open with a Wholesale Bedding Plant Auction on Friday, April 22 at 11 a.m. with additional auctions on May 6 and May 20. The regular produce auctions will begin in June. Once the supply of produce permits, auctions will be held on the following schedule: Monday and Thursday at 7 p.m. and Wednesday and Friday at 11 a.m.

According to Shlagel, the SMRFM, will work to encourage further alternative crop production by growers. He announced a special pumpkin auction featuring pumpkins and Halloween decorations to be held on a Tuesday in early October. For this auction only, sales commissions will not be charged and "no sales" will not be allowed.

To further encourage grower participation and alternative crop production, the SMRFM is offering a bell pepper bonus program for Maryland growers. A bonus of $500 per acre is being offered to growers producing a minimum of two acres and a maximum of four acres of bell peppers.

The SMRFM will use its packing line for grading and packing the peppers. Growers have to follow program guidelines, such as irrigating the peppers, growing a 3-4 lobed, blocky pepper and following best management practices. Growers must also meet a yield quota of 600 bushels per acre.

For more information, call (800) 533-3276.

Red And White International Show Held

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Mo. — The 1993 International Spring Red & White Show was held last Friday at the Maryland State Fairgrounds in Timonium, Maryland with Ladies Continental Cher-Red taking the award for grand champion of show. Owned and exhibited by Gus Schwartzbeck of Union Bridge, Maryland, the four and a half-year-old cow was sired by Constantly Joaquin-Red-ET *TL. The dam of this magnificent red and white beauty was O-S-C Dairy Continental Shar.

Ladies Continental Cher-Red was sold at the sale following the show and brought $4,350. As for the show, Schwartzbeck said the quality at the show was really good, and Judge Hill did an excellent job.

The reserve grand champion of show was Amazing-Acres GE Tomato-Red, a six-year-old cow bred by Amazing Acres Holsteins and owned and exhibited by Aaron Lee Farms of Breslau, Ontario, Canada. Amazing-Acres GE Tomato-Red also won the award for best udder of show.

Winning the titles of Premier Breeder and Premier Exhibitor were Roscoe and Mary Ann Harbaugh of Har-Land Manor Farm in Thurmont. With seventeen head of cattle entered in Friday's show, they won the senior yearling heifer class with Har-Land-Manor Say Rita-Red and took first and second place in the junior two-year-old class with Har-Land-Manor Geo Susan-Red and Har-Land-Manor Cherry Lee-Red. They won the senior two-year-old class with Har-Land-Manor Margin Kim-Red and took second in that class with Har-Land Manor Dak Sue-Red. They also took second place in the junior yearling heifer and second place in the three-year-old class. The Harbaughs also had a big win with the best three senior bred and owned females and best three bred and owned junior females.

Roscoe Harbaugh said, "It was a good show. We're getting more animals out, but I'd like to see more . . . I'd like to see a hundred head. The tops in their classes were very good," he added. "Some of the classes lacked depth, but we had the best quality tops that we've seen in quite a while."

The 1993 International Red & White Show was small in comparison to their previous spring shows, but exhibitors came from New York, Canada, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware. Judge Chris Hill of Maryland evaluated a total of 80 head of cattle. Three dairy princesses were at the show, handing out awards and representing their areas. They were the Maryland Dairy Princess Dawn Downey; the Baltimore-Hereford dairy princess, Martha Chason, and the South Central dairy princess, Kristi Geary.

The 16th annual International Spring Red and White Sale was held on Saturday evening in the Cow Palace at the fairgrounds. Co-managed by RWDCA and The Cattle Exchange, eighty-six lots were sold including 4 "picks of flush" and ten "embryo packages." Auctioneer David Rama from The Cattle Exchange commandeered a sale average of $1,850 on eighty-six lots. The top selling heifer was Granduc Mindy Astre-Et, a seven-month-old out of Puregal Astre Starbuck-ET who went for $7,800. The second highest seller was Roulette DJ-Red-CT, selling for $7,500, this four-year-old cow consigned by Dana Erway of Coudersport, Pennsylvania is out of Meadolake Jubilant -ET *TL and is due in mid April to Kinlea Leader *TL.

The third highest selling lot at the sale was a pick of flush, (Milestone X Blackcrest Chairman Kay) going for $7,200.

John Carpenter of the Red and White Dairy Cattle Association office in Crystal Spring, Pennsylvania said, "It was a very good sale."

three of the cow classes with home-bred animals, as well as the best three females class, helping them sweep the award for premier breeder and exhibitor of Show for the second consecutive year. "Last year they won the premier exhibitor award for the first time," Hill said, "They came back this year and won again!"

Mrs. Joe Schwartzbeck, (Nona) said, Peace & Plenty Mark Lexine "hasn't been classified yet, but she has a full sister that's 91 points and her and her full sister won the produce of dam. Her mother is "excellent" and she has a Dixie Crat sister that is 88 (points). Her mother is on the locator list for the Holstein Association, the top ten thousand cows in the nation". A big cow, she has been estimated at least sixty-two inches in height, but has never been sticked. "The win was a thrill", Mrs. Schwartzbeck said. "We haven't had a grand champion in twenty years!" Mrs. Schartzbeck also noted that there were three generations of Schwartzbeck family at the event.

The award for reserve senior champion and reserve grand champion of show went to Neodak Valiant Don Pris, a five-year-old cow owned by Marion Andrew of Centresville, Maryland. Pris was sired by Astro Valiant Don.

JEFFERSON, Md. — Approximately one hundred members of the Frederick County Holstein Association turned out on Tuesday evening for the group's 72nd Annual Meeting. The meeting was held at the Jefferson Community Center, Jefferson, and was catered by the Ruritans. Frederick has the largest of the County Associations in Maryland, with almost 150 members, and ranks highest of all counties in milk production.

The evening highlighted Frederick County Holstein activities in 1993, and looked toward the future of the organization. Awards were presented and the Junior Dairy Club report was given. Guest speakers Anita Hill, Secretary-Treasurer of the State Holstein Association, and Tom Dum, National Association Consultant, were on hand to update those in attendance on pertinent issues at the state and national levels. The evening concluded with the regular business meeting, and the election of new Officers and Directors for the upcoming year.

Dennis Remsburg, of Remsburg Sales Service, Jefferson, was Toastmaster for the event. Dee Guyton, a Junior Dairy Club member, offered the invocation, and Frederick County Dairy Princess Abby Sowers made the Milk Toast.

Special tribute was paid to C. Lester Dudrow, a prominent member of the farming communi-

Junior Dairy Club activities were reported on by Adriane Eader, President of the Club. 1993 was an excellent year for Juniors in Frederick County; the Club won the Large Herdsman Award, the 1993 Hoard's Dairyman Cow Judging Contest in their Division, and placed 7th overall in Judging at the National level. Congratulations went to the Frederick County Junior 4-H Dairy Judging Team, consisting of Andrea Hood, Jarrod Burall, Janell Guyton, and Andrew Lenhart, which placed first overall in their category at the State level, the Intermediate 4-H Team, comprised of Amanda Valentine, Darren Wolf, Carena Guyton, and Erin Burall, which came in second at the state contest, and to the Senior 4-H Team of Holly Burall, Jody Bell, Annette Summers, and Joshua Grossnickle, who placed first overall and were State Champions. The Brunswick FFA Team: Kelli Savage, Dee Guyton, Holly Burall, and Abby Fawley, were also State Champions. Five Frederick County Juniors were Record Book Winners at the State level, and had been recognized at the recent State Convention: Andrea Hood, Amanda Lenhart, Andy Covell, Darren Wolf, and Darren Remsburg. 1993 Frederick County Fair Fitting and Showing winners honored included Erin Burall, Intermediate, and Andrea Hood, Junior. Both recipients received show halters. Holly Burall took top honors in the Senior Fitting and Showing category at the County Fair, and was awarded a Holstein model cow. Distinguished Junior Members for 1993 were Holly Burall and Dee Guyton, who together won the Outstanding Holstein Youth Award. Both have been very active in 4-H for 7 or 8 years, have participated in the FFA Dairy Bowl Judging competition, and have exhibited at local, State, and National shows. The youth were honored with Holstein lamps with pens.

Richard Kepler, Outgoing President of the Frederick County Holstein Association, welcomed those in attendance to the 72nd Annual Dinner Meeting.

Tom Dum, Consultant for the National Holstein Association, shared his thoughts on the future of the industry, saying, "Someone's going to make the milk, someone's going to make the profit, and someone's going to go broke. We need to decide where we want to be."

He suggested that dairiy farmers could either "Progress with progress, or be plowed under by it." Regarding the controversial proposed National fee increase, Mr. Dum indicated registrations are down; only 15% of the population is currently using the services of the National organization. If more people get involved and register their cows, registration fees and other fees can be kept down. He encouraged people to get involved, and discussed some incentives for those who need to catch up on their I.D. programs.

Outgoing President Richard Kepler turned the gavel over to Michael Allen. Pat Beachy was elected as the new Vice President. Lynn R. Ausherman will remain on as Secretary-Treasurer. Newly elected Directors for the County Association are; James Stup, Jr. and James Keilholtz, 1-year Directors: Wilson Stevens and Dave Doody, 2-year Directors; and Cindy Keller and Robert Lenhart, 3-year Directors. Tommy Remsburg and Scott Hood will remain State Directors.

State Forms Aquaculture Oversee Committee

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Department of Agriculture hosted a meeting recently to establish state guidelines for preventing depradation of fish by wild birds. Wild birds are a serious economic threat to aquaculture, a $12 million segment of Pennsylvania's agricultural industry.

Addressing concerns by the state's fish farmers, a committee was formed to establish a statewide policy for the timely issuance of nuisance bird kill permits.

These permits would authorize fish producers to eliminate individual birds that don't respond to any other control methods. Most fish producers are already using scare tactics such as noise devices, expensive netting, structural barriers and/or electric fencing.

The new committee includes one representative from the Fish Commission and three from the Game Commission, along with two fish farmers and the Department's aquaculture coordinator. Their recommendations will be finalized in May.

About one-third of Pennsylvania's 153 fish farms are located on major flyways or near major nesting sites. These producers experience frequent problems with black crown night herons, great blue herons and sea gulls, who can easily consume their body weight in fish each day. This can amount to as much as 40 percent of the fingerlings stocked by a farmer each spring.

In addition to providing fresh fish for the dinner table, Pennsylvania's aquaculture industry produces fish for recreational fishing, research, home aquariums and garden ponds.

Depredation is not unique to aquaculture. Many farmers have their corn crop or grain fields wiped out by grazing deer and geese. Airports and community parks are also plagued with nuisance duck and geese.

Aquaculture Advisory Board Meets

The Aquaculture Advisory Board has asked the Department of Agriculture to develop fish health policies for the state and the mid-Atlantic region, during their bi-annual meeting.

The request is a result of the problems producers face in shipping fish into the New England states since the introduction of the New England salmonid health policy, which curtailed almost all sales from Pennsylvania.

The advisory board was given an overview of the Chesapeake Bay Policy for the Introduction of Non-Indigenous Species, signed by the governors of the signatory states in the tributary watersheds of the bay last December. This policy would determine what new species of fish may be cultured in the future.

It was also announced that the Pennsylvania Aquaculture Association is offering 4-H and FFA students an opportunity to raise fish for summer projects and sell them to the association in the fall for their commodity booth during the State Farm Show in January.

This would include hybrid striped bass, tilapia, trout and catfish produced in cage culture or recirculating systems, provided they meet PAA health and quality guidelines. About 35 schools have recirculating systems now that would qualify.

For more information about either of the aquaculture meetings, contact Leo Dunn in the Bureau of Ag Development at 717-783-8462.

Farmer's Market Begins Season With Bedding Plant Auctions

CHELTENHAM, Md. — The Southern Maryland Regional Farmer's Market (SMRFM) is gearing up to begin the 1994 season.

The market will hold it's first auction of the season on Friday, April 22, at 11 a.m.

The wholesale auction will feature bedding plants and early spring crops such as spring onions primarily from the southern Maryland area. Additional auctions will be held on Friday, May 6 and May 20 at 11 a.m.

According to Chairman Russell Shlagel, wholesale bedding plant auctions were held at the market for the first time last season.

"Bedding plants are another alternative for tobacco growers trying to diversify," said Shlagel. "The SMRFM is continually striving to offer growers as many opportunities as possible to sale alternative crops".

Growers and wholesale buyers interested in participating in the wholesale bedding plant auctions should call (800) 533-3276.

Forest Insect Pest Meeting Set

WARREN (Warren Co.) — An important educational meeting to better inform landowners about the elm spanworm and fall canker-worm threats to woodlots and community trees has been scheduled for Thursday, April 28 at the Mercyhurst Smith Educational Center in Corry.

The meeting will take place from 7:30-8:30 p.m., and it is open to the public. It is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry and Eric County Penn State Cooperative Extension. Preregistration is not required.

Norm Kauffman, entomologist with the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, will be the main speaker. He will explain the history and biology of these pests and will outline the recommended control practices for homeowners and woodland owners alike.

According to Don Wary, district forester with the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, "These insect pests have the potential to cause some serious economic damage this year. The public should be beteter informed to protect their woodlots and trees from defoliation."

Newly Arrived Feedlot Cattle Have Special Needs

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Vaccination of beef animals shortly after arrival on the feedlot is not only unnecessary, it may even be harmful.

That message went to about 40 producers who attended a session on handling newly arrived feeder cattle as part of last week's Pennsylvania Beef Expo Educational Symposium, held at the Farm Show Complex.

Dr. Sam Baringer, West Virginia University, told the producers and industry representatives that he recommends producers "put the dosage on the ground rather than in the cow" because of the potentially damaging effects it may have on newly arrived cattle.

The reason the newly arrived cattle have trouble responding to vaccine, according to Baringer, is because the young animals are often under high stress and have to get used to a proper nutrition and handling regime before their biological systems can respond in the correct way. The diet requires high amounts of protein and other nutrients in order to elicit the correct disease- or infection-fighting response.

Many producers have a tendency to move too fast into programs to vaccinate the cattle. Also, feeding corn silage after arrival led to higher disease prevalance, in studies conducted recently.

Factors that relate to having bad immune response include stress, nutrition, crowding, weather, age, pregnancy, parasites, and others. He told producers to allow 2-3 weeks for calves to get adjusted to the feed "and then put together something they can respond to.

"This is where your management is going to come in a great deal," he said. "Management and nutrition are going to make a difference."

The processing program should include identifying the animals. Know the cow and keep careful records. Also, measure body temperature — do the cattle have fever? After several weeks, follow a careful castration/dehorning program. Make a decision about aborting pregnancy with heifers.

Vaccination of beef animals shortly after arrival on the feedlot is not only unnecessary, it may even be harmful, according to Dr. Sam Baringer, West Virginia University, who spoke at the Pennsylvania Beef Expo Educational Symposium last week at the Farm Show Complex.

Producers should realize that if they have purchased preconditioned cattle, the vaccine processing program can be eliminated.

The most important management strategy, according to Baringer, is to remove all stresses to the newly arrived cattle and provide them with good feed (grass hay, not alfalfa), good water, and a proper medical program administered with the help of a veterinarian.

Many producers take too much into their own hands and follow their own treatment programs, which often includes lots of Vitamin C. Baringer said that using Vitamin C is not really successful. Also, too many producers believe that "if it's not working, we got to use more," he said. Producers must elminate overtreatment and follow the label.

For those cattle who succumb, for whatever reason, it is up to the producer to find out what killed it. "If you let it die and dig a hole, you didn't learn anything and you lost money on top of it," he said.

Also, producers were provided update information on growth promotants for feeder cattle by Dr. Lowell Wilson, Penn State.

Wilson told the producers that "In all the years using implants, we never had a residue problem from a growth promotant."

Growth promotants provide producers with a better return per unit of investment than "almost anything else we can do in a cattle operation," he said.

But it is important that producers understand the negative way consumers may react to the use of promotants. If used, promotants must be used carefully. Producers should be wary of the important management strategies that must be in place to make their use effective.

Producers were provided update information on growth promotants for feeder cattle by Dr. Lowell Wilson, Penn State. Wilson told the producers that "In all the years using implants, we never had a residue problem from a growth promotant."

Promotants are used to stimulate rate of growth, increase utilization of nutrients, and direct nutrients to protein production and "muscle-building" in the animals to slaughter. One of the chief concerns producers should have is the possible jeopardizing of compounds if used too close to animal slaughter.

Also, mistakes can be made, which can be costly, including an abscess with serum around the implant from incorrect emplacement, bunched implants, injection into cartilage, crushed pellets, and missing implants. Producers must be careful about emplacement (implant only in middle ⅓ of ear), to withdraw the needle slowly, and to be careful not to implant into cartilage.

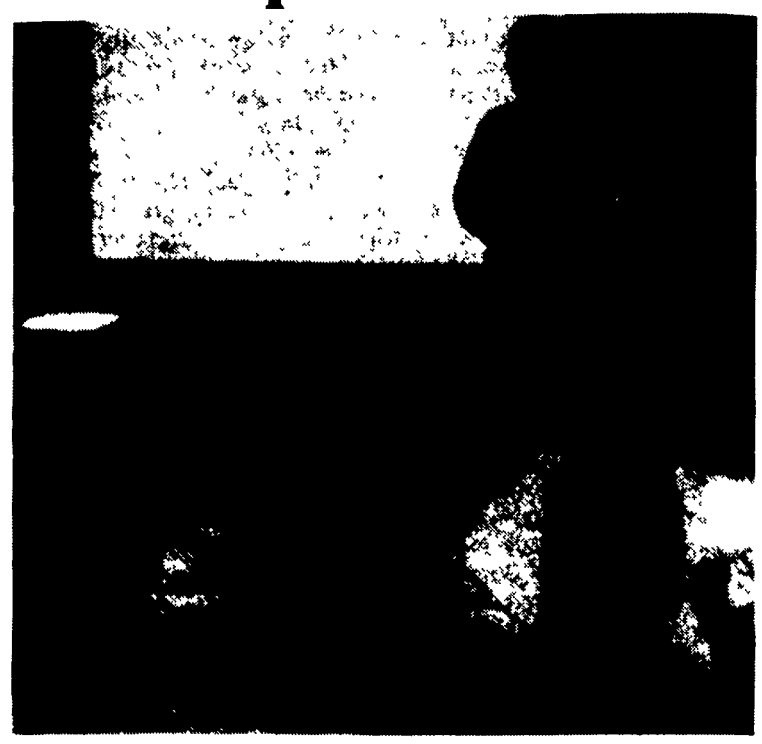
Producers need to "slow down," which will help the ease and accuracy of implant emplacement.

Some biosecurity checkpoints include disinfecting the equipment between each animal, making sure the animal has dry ears, and improving the cattle restraint (producers should use good head gates, according to Wilson). Also, use new, sharp needles and check implant position each time.

Use implants only as labeled or recommended, and, above all, "use common sense," said Wilson.

The most important part of the overall "implant strategy," according to Wilson, is to have a minimum time of last implant in the steer before it is slaughtered. "Treat implants with respect."

Other sessions included pasture management principles, nutrient management bill overview, matching pasture to animal needs, a political perspective on the production regulation for beef, starting feeder cattle on silage and protein, and harvest and storage of large hay bales.



Harvest and storage of large hay bales was the subject of a presentation by Dr. Dennis Buckmaster, Penn State.

Maryland Ag Secretary Urges Nutrient Management Plans

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Secretary Robert L. Walker recently issued a reminder to farmers urging them to obtain a state-approved nutrient management plan as they prepare for the spring planting season.

"For Maryland to meet the 40-percent nutrient reduction goal of the Chesapeake Bay Agreement through voluntary means, we'll need to enroll over a million acres — or 70 percent of Maryland's farmland — into our Nutrient Management Program by the year 2000," said Secretary Walker.

"Although many farmers practice some form of nutrient management, unless they are working with a state-licensed nutrient management consultant, their efforts to help the Bay could go largely unrecognized," he explained.

"By working with an MDA-approved nutrient management consultant, farmers will be assured that agriculture gets the credit it deserves for its conservation efforts."

Maryland's Nutrient Management Program, a cooperative effort between MDA and the Cooperative Extension Service, helps farmers manage nutrients from animal wastes, commercial fertilizers and urban sludge. The goal is to make certain that crops are getting the right amount of nutrients at the right time in the growing season so that few, if any, unused nutrients escape.

Farmers enrolled in the Nutrient Management Program work closely with a specially-trained nutrient management consultant. Using soil tests, manure analyses, and sophisticated computer technology, consultants provide farmers with a "prescription" approach to fertilizer use. This helps ensure that nutrients applied are used by crops and not lost to the environment.

Private consultants are certified through MDA's Nutrient Management Certification Program. These consultants are available to take soil and manure samples and develop a field-specific nutrient management plan.

In addition, the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service also has nutrient management consultants available to provide farmers with a state-approved nutrient management plan.

Farmers should make certain to verify their consultant's credentials by asking to see his or her MDA certification card and Nutrient Management Program business license. An MDA-published quarterly list of certified consultants is available at local soil conservation district offices, county Extension offices and MDA headquarters. Farmers may also call MDA at (410) 841-5863 to verify credentials.

"If agriculture is to remain free of mandatory regulations, all farmers must stand up and be counted as part of the Bay restoration effort," added Secretary Walker. "Taking part in Maryland's Nutrient Management Program is one of the best ways to do this."

For more information on Maryland's Nutrient Management Program, call (410) 841-5863.

Revised Classification Regions Affect Scheduling

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Effective August 1, the Holstein Association will be changing the geographic makeup of several classification regions in the eastern part of the U.S.

The changes will allow the Association to maintain efficiency while offering dairy producers greater flexibility in scheduling their classifications.

Because of these changes, some regions will have an interval of slightly more or less than seven months between area programs during the transition period. After the transition period, all regions will return to the standard seven-month interval for area programs.

The states affected are Alabama, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia.

Dairy producers in these states can call their Holstein member service representative toll-free at 1-800-952-5200, if they have questions about the schedule for their region.

salesman award for three years. Nichole works part time as a horse trainer and belongs to the 4-H Horse-N-Around Club.

As president of the organization for two years, Ray Grimes said that one of his goals was to have the Expo moved to the Farm Show Complex from Penn State. The main reason for the move was the hassle with bad weather.

Grimes and his wife Mary donated a Charolais heifer to Heather Sleeman, winner of the Charolais Heifer Chain, a program established by the association last year. According to the rules, the winner is to show the animal and give back the first female offspring to the association so that it can be given to another young showman.

The association chose Jamie Lynn Cowell as the recipient of the scholarship award. Jamie, the daughter of James and Billie Cowell of Waynesburg is a member of the American Junior Simmental Association. The high school senior operates her own cattle fitting and showing business called Neon Fitting Service. The National Honor Society member is active in many school activities and has won awards in 4-H beef breeding, market steer, lamb, swine, and sheep.

She plans to use the $250 scholarship to study ag technology at Central Missouri State University.

The Seedstock Producer Award went to Frank Darcey of Spring Bottom Farm in Adams County. According to Rep. Sheila Miller, Darcy received the award for his accomplishment and involvement in selling seed stock for bulls across the U.S. Darcy is president of Adams County Beef Producers, board member of Farmers Home Administration and Pa. Cattleman, president of the Polled Hereford Association, and active in Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Pennsylvania Farm Show, and other livestock-related events.

Other awards went to the Beef Council represented by Elrose Glick, David Ivan, and Tammy Baltzhaser.

For signing up the most new members, Bunk Smith of Dillsburg received the Top Hand Award.

Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association
DHIA Service Center, Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association years ago was more of a selection on who would provide DHIA field, laboratory and data process services.

That has all changed, as Pa.DHIA matured into an organization striving to meet members' needs better that it has in the past.

Under the current policies of the national organization, DHIA members have the freedom to choose where their DHIA services come from.

Such freedom is viewed as beneficial because it introduces competition. Now members can pick and choose from among nine processing centers, dozens of labs and more than 40 state organizations for official records services.

When the decision was made to reorganize the DHIA system in Pennsylvania, the Pa.DHIA Board of Directors chose a future as a full-service provider because of the advantages of this approach to members.

Increased reliability of service, reduced liability for members, improved delivery of new services, uniform management of DHIA employees, etc. — each reason for making change to the Pa.DHIA is very important, though too numerous to name here.

All but five counties have endorsed the board's decision by merging their local association with Pa.DHIA. The local committees of three of those five counties have decided to have members vote upon a merger within the next couple of months.

Ten years of preparation have preceded reorganization of the DHIA system needed to make the full-service concept work successfully in Pennsylvania.

Have you explored the benefits of a full-service organization that will result from merger and compared those benefits to the alternatives?

The full-service DHIA is a real benefit to you as a member. Pa.DHIA continues to change and meet the management needs of the present and future dairymen.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

MILK CHECK

THOMAS JURCHAK
Dairy Specialist
Lackawanna County

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series set a record high of $12.77 for March.

The old record of $12.67 for March was made in 1981, following an increase of 74 cents in the support price to $13.10 in October 1980.

That $13.10 was the highest dairy support price on record, but that $12.67 M-W price was as close as it ever came to the $13.10 support. Which has something to say about how high you can try to push prices either through support prices, or other methods, if the market doesn't exist to warrant the higher prices — even if the Commodity Credit Corporation is one of the buyers in the market.

For more recent comparisons, that $12.77 M-W price for March was 36 cents more than last month, and $1.75 better than last year.

From a low of $11.17 last August, it has made steady advances for the last seven months that total $1.60 and average nearly 23 cents a month, with more to come even as we start the spring season.

Reasons to this counter-seasonal good news, for producers with good feed supplies or sources, are the same as they have been all winter — milk production that has been slow to increase for a variety of reasons, and continuing good demand from handlers who don't want to risk the prospect of even lower production in the future.

In addition, the Dairy Export Incentive Program is finally revived and adding to the demand side particularly for milk powder.

Another Record

The reason for the record high M-W price centered largely on a record high cheese price.

On Friday (April 1), the National Cheese Exchange reported prices of nearly $1.40 a pound for blocks and over $1.37 for barrels. This was the result of nine weeks of price increases that totaled over 9 cents on blocks and nearly 12 cents on barrels.

The previous highs of $1.39 and $1.36 were also set in April last year. The high continued through May when they started a steady decline of 18 cents in 10 weeks before starting up again in August.

Perhaps there is something in this pattern of a year ago that may give some clues to the future.

No one believes cheese prices can continue their present course much longer. Some forecasters have already predicted an imminent crash. They just don't agree on when it will come.

Of course, the cheese prices haven't been all that have contributed to the higher M-W. Powder prices have gone as high as $1.16 with the help of subsidized exports under DEIP, and butter prices have almost put CCC out of business as a price supporter.

Lower production that hangs on in the upper Midwest has milk moving from Florida to Wisconsin as production increases in the warmer climate.

Market Adjustment

As in the past, all of these trends can change in the future. Just as the stock market needed adjustment and recovered, watch for a similar adjustment in milk prices as the factors that produced these record high prices shift in response to changing conditions and certainly to the higher prices that they produced.

What goes up can come down, and certainly we should learn from the past.

Lebanon Establishes Awards To Honor Conservationists

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — A proposal to establish three separate conservation awards was approved at a committee meeting of conservation groups Monday night.

According to Chuck Wertz, Lebanon County Conservation District manager, the awards will honor the conservation landowner of the year, conservationist of the year, and conservation educator.

The awards were patterned after guidelines established by the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (PACD), according to Wertz. A committee established by several county conservation groups used some of the guidelines of the PACD and combined several categories to come up with three basic awards, said Wertz.

According to the district manager, the Conservation Landowner Award is patterned after PACD's Conservation Farmer of the Year Award category but is open to any farmer, landowner, civic organization, government agency, business, or industry. The Conservation Landowner Award will examine how conservation has been applied to varying land uses, including but not limited to farming, woodlot management/forestry, watersheds, wildlife/recreation, urban conservation, and resource recovery/recycling programs.

For some time, the conservation district has only sporadically honored a conservation educator, according to Wertz. The Conservation Education Award would honor either a paid professional or volunteer educator who has contributed time and expertise to the promotion of conservation through education.

"We're not going to exclude people who are not paid as educators," said Wertz.

The Conservationist of the Year Award will stress voluntary conservation efforts of an individual or group entity that is not necessarily a landowner practicing conservation, according to Wertz.

"We never really had a good, comprehensive awards program due to lack of public support," said Wertz. He indicated that local representatives of the Lebanon County Federation of Sportsman's Clubs, state fish and boat commission, game commission, state bureau of forestry, and other groups serve on the committee.

The awards will be presented at the annual county conservation meeting on November 3 at noon at the Lebanon Valley Agricultural Center.

For more information about the awards, contact Wertz at the district, (717) 272-3377.

Universities Receive Research Funds

DAVIS, Calif. — An industry group has announced funding of its first projects to take genetic insect resistance-management out of the laboratory and into a field setting.

According a news release made this week, the Bt Management Working Group (BtMWG), an international industry group comprised of scientists from 15 companies, has announced it is providing $60,000 to fund three research projects.

Two of the field studies are to involve plants which have been genetically altered to produce proteins normally produced by Bacillus Thuringiensis (Bt).

Another study is to research resistance factors in the diamondback moth in field experiements in the United States and abroad.

Bacillus Thuringiensis is a bacterica which causes death in caterpillars after it is ingested, because of its lethal effect in the gut of the insect larva.

It has been used as a natural agent in the control of Gypsy Moth and other insects, such as the black fly.

This year is the first time that BtMWG, a non-headquartered group with interest in the use of Bt, has sponsored research involved in actual field experiments, according to Susan MacIntosh, chairperson of the BtMWG, and scientist at Novo Nordisk Entotech, in Davis, Calif.

Those receiving funding are North Carlonia State University and University of Illinois for research on the European cornborer; Cornell University for Diamondback Moth research; and Mississippi State University for research into the tobacco budworm in cotton.

Entomologists, or insect researchers, at North Carolina and Illinois universities are to conduct field experiments involving corn plants that have been given genetic material to produce Bt for control of European cornborer.

The researchers are to use field work as well as computer modeling to determine if mixtures of corn with and without Bt production abilities can slow or avoid Bt resistance in the corn borer. A devasting corn pest, the European corn borer has not, as of yet, exhibited resistance to Bt.

David Onstad, with the office of Agricultural Entomology at Illinois , and Fred Gould, with the Department of Entomology at N.C. State University, are in charge of the research.

"The research will look at the survival of insects that migrate from one plant to another," said Brian Melin, vice chairman of the BtMWG. Melin is also a scientist at Abbott Laboratories. "Some questions to be answered are, 'Do the insects migrate away from the corn plant with Bt?' and, if they do, 'Are they going to survive on plants without the Bt gene?'"

In another project, Cornell University experts are to supervise field work on strategies to deter, identify, and measure resistance in the Diamondback Moth. Anthony Shelton and Richard Roush, with the Department of Entomology at Cornell, are responsible for the project.

Melin said that the study of the Diamondback is of special interest because it is the only known pest to have developed resistance to Bt. in the field, even though Bt have been used in agriculture for about 30 years.

He said this may be because of this particular moth's relativeiy low mobility and high reproductive capacity, combined with high doses of Bt.

For the Diamondback, actual field studies are to be conducted in Florida, New York, Texas, Canada, and Central America to determine what strategies may best deter resistance, and also to develop a technique for identifying and measuring resistance in the moth at the earliest time possible.

Other research that involves the tobacco budworm is to be done in the laboratory with the use of computer simulation.

According to the news release, entomologist Michael Caprio, with the Mississippi State University, is to use computer models to evaluate strategies designed to manage Bt resistance in the budworm, as it concerns cotton plants that have been genetically altered to produce the Bt protein. He is to look at best ways to put plants out in the field to avoid or delay resistance, seed mixtures, etc., through computer modeling and simulation.

Although it is the first year that BtMWG has supported field research, it is the fifth consecutive year that the group has dedicated funding of research into Bt resistance-management strategies and the role that Bt-based products play in integrated pest management (IPM) systems, according to MacIntosh. Altogether the group has provided more than $300,000 in grants during that time.

"Until now, the BtMWG-sponsored research has focused exclusively on laboratory studies, including computer modeling of insect resistance strategies. We will continue to do some of that, as well as basic studies of how Bts work. but the increasing availability of both spray-on and plant Bt products now allows us to move on to a more real life setting of field research," MacIntosh said.

The objective of the group is to ensure the availability of a broad spectrum of mechanisms to protect crops against insects, she said. "Our research and education program is dedicated to ensuring this goal."

Eastern Elects Paulhamus To Board

CORNING, N.Y. — Ethel Paulhamus of Jersey Shore, Pa., made history recently when she was ratified as the newest member of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative's Board of Directors in conjunction with the co-op's two-day delegate meeting here.

Mrs. Paulhamus, who operates a 260-acre farm with son Steve, is the second woman in seven months to be elected to the 12-member board.

It is the first time in the history of the 71-year-old dairy cooperative that two women have served on the board together. In another first for the co-op, both women succeeded their husbands as directors.

Last September, Gerry Mesick of South Schodack, N.Y., became the first woman to serve on the board in over two decades, and the second woman director in the co-op's history. Her husband, George, served for nine years before retiring from the board. They operate an 800-acre farm in partnership with their sons.

Mrs. Paulhamus decided to run for the board after her husband, Dale, died earlier this year. He had served 8 1/2 years on the board, and was in the final year of his third three-year term.

"I was so used to accompanying him to Eastern meetings and trying to help him," she said. "We were always discussing co-op business."

She believes traveling with her husband is what prepared her. The farmers in her central Pennsylvania district apparently thought so too as they cast ballots on Friday, March 4. The board ratified the vote three days later in conjunction with Eastern's semi-annual Delegate Meeting in Corning, NY. As a director, she represents some 200 farm families.

She will fill her husband's unexpired term and run again for a three-year term before Eastern's annual meeting this fall.

"I want to see the co-op continue the Scholarship Fund and the Young Cooperator program, and to help the farmers so they get more money for their product," she said.

The Paulhamus farm has been in the family for over 100 years. Corn and alfalfa are the primary crops on 220 tillable acres, as well as another 50 acres the family rents. They milk 60 cows in a herd of 100 head of cattle.

Mrs. Paulhamus said she used to help in the field as well as in the barn, but now that she is older she concentrates on the farm's books while her son Steve does the milking and field work with help from another son, Dave, who has his own logging business.

She has two other sons, Dennis and Curtis, who are self-employed truck drivers, and a daughter, Becky Shutts, who "is a nurse and housewife," she said.

Besides dairying, "my main thing is sewing," Mrs. Paulhamus said. When the State Grange ran a sewing contest, she would enter almost every year, she recalled, and once took first place in the adult division as well as best of show for a dress she made for her daughter.

"I always sewed for my whole family," she said. "We had five children. We bought one coat for them. I always made their coats and clothes."

Mrs. Paulhamus graduated from Jersey Shore High School and was active in 4-H for a number of years. She is a past member of the Pine Run Grange and is currently a trustee for St. John's Chapel, United Methodist, in Liden.

Advisory Board Talks Deepen

morning.

The board was created solely to advise the State Conservation Commission as the Commission creates regulations implementing the Nutrient Management Act.

The act was created in order to establish legal controls of non-point nutrient pollution. It also provides for yet-untested protection from liability and from multiple prosecution for those who establish and follow an approved nutrient management plan.

Though the law calls for the establishment of regulations for controlling agricultural contributions to the flow of nutrients, it also directs the state Department of Environmental Resources to research and address other contributors of nutrient flow.

Currently the effort is to develop regulations and procedures to assess nutrient application activity, determine some level of control, acceptibility of devices of nutrient control, and subject a degree of responsibility and reward for excercising control.

In that effort, the first major catagory of non-point nutrient sources to be addressed under the Nutrient Management Act is agricultural livestock operations, especially the more modern operations which can accept densities of animals-per-acre that are much higher than historic practices permitted.

The main issue of contention during Wednesday's meeting was in agreeing on definitions and getting some kind of assurances that proposed regulations for the control of nutrients would not become so bureaucratic that agriculturalists would shy away from doing voluntary nutrient management plans for their farms.

Dr. Douglas Beegle, though not a member of the board, has been attending meetings at its request and has been asked by the board many times to provide expert opinion as to what is practicable and what is not.

Beegle has been involved in the process for some time, and is respected by the board for his agronomic expertise.

Throughout the process, Beegle has stated that the regulations under nutrient management should not be so detailed or restricting that it would confine an operator's ability to create a workable plan for controlling nutrients.

In that sense, Beegle has said a goal of minimizing the loss of nutrients from the control of the farmer should be the main key to any plan. He has suggested that the Commission approach the Act with a view toward creating regulations which address topics of concern, but which allow reference to approved guidelines, as could be eventually approved by the commission for use in implementing a plan.

In this way, should innovation, or new technology become available and have applicability to the control of nutrients, it can be quickly adopted.

Furthermore, defining acceptable practices in the regulations would require another regulation-making process everytime a new type of possible method of handling nutrients and nutrient-containing materials, such as manure, would be suggested.

The apparent desire by the board majority is to allow flexibility in a nutrient management plan so that business management plans can coincide and be implemented without reducing the effectiveness of nutrient control.

An expressed fear is that farmers may be prevented from working the farm according to the changes in nature, in order to stay in business.

Currently, with a delayed planting date, a farmer may choose to plant another crop or shorter maturing variety in a specific field which may change the way a portion of his nutrient uses are handled.

Under the proposal reviewed for the first time Wednesday, specific crops and acres planted are requested. The objection was raised that writing down a plan that contains crop acreage specifics may somehow limit the ability of the farmer to be flexible in trying to succeed in farming.

The argument against being specific with crop information was illustrated in a scenario in which a government official would review the plan, note the discrepency, and declare the operator to be out of compliance with the nutrient management plan.

The nine-page proposal of regulations included several passages that were more specific than what some members of the board thought was appropriate, and the board approved recommending several changes.

However, it was also made clear that in order for controls of nutrients to be effective, regulations had to contain some specific rules so that enforcement challenges to practices could be supported by law.

The proposed preliminary draft of regulations were created for discussion purposes only and covered a partial list of definitions, general provisions, general requirements of nutrient management plans, identification of concentrated animal operations, the plan concept.

Under the plan concept are paragraphs covering the scope of the plan to identification of farms and acreage, summary statements of nutrient management plans, determinations of available nutrients, and nutrient application rates and procedures.

Discussions seemed to get bogged down on how specific a plan would have to be with regard to the application of nutrients, as far as timing and testing of manure.

The degree of specificity in documenting how much volume of nutrients are to be used in an operation are yet to be fully discussed.

On one hand, arguments were made that too much specificity would interfere in daily operational and business decision-making abilities of farmers, hindering their ability to make quick decisions in response to changes in environmental conditions.

On the other hand, it was argued that too little specificity would not provide enough confidence that nutrients would be properly controlled under a plan.

Other than Dr. Beegle's request (which was also supported by other members, but not made into a motion) that official guidelines for practices be adopted by the commission and reviewed by the advisory board, no discussion yet focussed on the possibility of a plan including a list of preferred backup options for handling nutrients given forseeable variations in conditions.

The board is expected to pick back up on talks during its May meeting.

Wednesday's Agenda

On Wednesday, Michael Krempasky, secretary of the commission, presented an agenda which included:

- a comment period on the adoption of the interim criteria which establishes a framework for creating a certification program;
- a review of preliminary regulations for nutrient management with emphasis on definitions of a concentrated animal operation and nutrient application;
- discussion on environmentally sensitive areas;
- an introduction to SCS standards for conservation planning;
- and update on interim certification work by the Department of Agriculture, which is charged with creating and administering certification of nutrient management specialists;
- and an overview of the One-Plan Concept, which is an attempt to combine all the various operational plans pertaining to an agricultural operation so that the plan works in syncopation, in confliction.

However, because of the intensity of discussion over the review of preliminary regulations, the rest of the topics were postponed until the next meeting, scheduled May 4, also in Room 309 at the PDA headquarters building.

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

journalism, are needed.

• Global and national ag marketing needs to be studied.

• The College of Agricultural Sciences needs to be used as a source of public information.

• The impression of a national cheap food policy needs to be addressed as it affects ag profitability.

• Biotech and its effects on the marketability of food products needs attention.

• Restrictions on content and labeling of alternate animal products needs to be addressed.

At the noon luncheon, Ken Rice and Dave Seamans were honored for six years of service on the board of directors, and Bob Sams was honored for his work as the liaison between the dean's office and the council from 1986 to 1993.

Aimee Eopechino, university scholar, winner of the Bryce Jordan student leadership award and student council president, told of her experiences on student council and as an ag advocate for Penn State. She listed benefits of student involvement on campus to include the development of student leadership skills and corresponding team skills learned in cooperation when others were leading. In addition, when students are involved, they have the opportunity to implement change and help make policy. Aimee also noted student involvement in the community. For example, the Dairy and Animal Science Club Christmas caroled at a nursing home and held an educational farm day for foster children and their families at the ag arena.

Ag industry leaders were encouraged to support students by providing internships and by getting involved as speakers and attendees at special club activities.

In the afternoon business meeting, Jack Dreibelbis, treasurer, reported the association in good financial standing and issued an invitation to contribute to the Bryce Jordan Student Leadership Award fund. Checks should be made payable to the Agricultural Advisory Council and sent to Pat Heuser, 238 Ag Adminstration Bldg., University Park, PA 16802.

Dean Lamartine Hood reported that Gov. Robert Casey's state budget calls for appropriations for Penn State extension to hold at last year's levels, but the governor's recommendations for research funds is reduced by 2.4 percent. None of the requested funds for telecommunication are in the state budget.

Since 1991, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences has managed with increasing costs and declining resources. Permanent state funding to the College has decreased $1.9 million from 1991 to 1992 to the present. To meet this challenge, the College has reduced the scope of its programs and number of staff and faculty. From 1990 to 1993, county staff and faculty positions have been reduced 8.3% and 13.3% respectively.

The College's 1994-1995 state budget request is less than one percent higher than total state funding received in 1991 to 1992. Hood said it is essential that the state increase its investment if Penn State is to maintain viable research and extension programs that are critical to all the citizens of the Commonwealth.

Hood also reported that the College has been selected to receive one of 12 planning grants from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to participate in their Food Systems Professions Education Program. The general thrust of the initiative is to create a model food system professions education program based on the changing values and needs of a diverse Pennsylvania population. With the competition for the grant, Penn State officials are pleased to be selected by Kellogg for the work.

In other business, Harry Roth, chair, reported for the College Liaison Task Force, and Everett Newswanger, chair, reported for the Communication Task Force.

At the end of the day, an educational session on the PENpages communications network was held.

First-Ever Beef Skillathon Draws 58

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The first-ever Pennsylvania Beef Skillathon was held last Saturday at the 1994 Pennsylvania Beef Expo.

The event, which was coordinated by the Pennsylvania Beef Council, had 58 participants.

Each individual who completed the skillathon received a "Beef. Pump Some Iron" t-shirt provided by Merck.

In the junior division, which had 25 participants, Ben Weist, a 10-year-old from Leesport, was the top participant. Weist is member of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club, which also had the first and third place teams in the junior division.

In the intermediate division, Clint Filges bested more than 15 other individuals. Filges is a 15-year-old from the Butler County 4-H Beef Breeding Club. His team was also captured first in their division.

The senior division, which had 18 contestants, was won by Ben Stein of East Berlin. The 18-year-old contestant is a member of the Adams County 4-H Beef Club.

Each division winner received a leather banner and a $50 savings bond sponsored by various beef producers.

The Skillathon provided challenging and learn-by-doing activities to help in the development of project skills of junior cattlemen. Activities were mini-learning stations that had the participants test their knowledge and ability to perform a specific task. The eight competition stations were identifying beef breeds, identifying feeds, equipment identification, beef cut identification and primal location, beef food safety, administering animal health medication, EPD evaluation, and overall beef industry knowledge.

Facilatators at each station allowed the participants to test their own knowledge and abilities before providing any guidance in completing the tasks. The stations provided the contestants a chance to practice decision-making, speaking before others, and the opportunity to become more comfortable communicating with adults.

Thanks & Congratulations To

Pastures Can Be Dr. Green

"Pastures, they do a body good."

This might be a good slogan to adopt if you are interested in promoting good health and physical fitness in cattle. Many times you hear of pastures being referred to as "Dr. Green." It is a reputation well deserved.

Cows that have been raised in close confinement, on concrete and fed feeds that have been cured, chopped, fermented and stored for long periods of time, frequently "perk up" when turned out to graze fresh spring pastures.

They recover from their lamenesses, they appear thriftier and perhaps conceive better. Production can go up or down, depending upon feed quality and feeding practices.

This is not to say that cows can't be raised successfully in confinement for long periods of time. They can, and many good dairymen do so successfully.

The point is, pastures have much to offer. They give cows relief from concrete stress. They offer cows more opportunity for fresh air, sunshine and exercise. Fresh pasture forage can be more nutritious than stored forages, if properly managed, and can reduce purchased feed costs. They generally contain more vitamins, minerals, protein and energy, and are lower in non-digestible fiber.

Pastures have their down side too. They can get muddy and become a source of infections and parasites. Streams can become polluted and the water unfit for cows to consume. Cows can also be exposed to toxic weeds, yard wastes, and to conditions causing bloat.

Getting The Most From Your Pastures

To get more benefit from your present pastures you may not have to invest a lot of time and expense. It may be as simple as protecting and encouraging the pastures you already have.

Start by limiting cows' access to pasture areas. Fence off an area close to the barn and use it as a sacrifice area or exercise lot. In other words, don't let cows turn the entire pasture into a non-productive exercise lot.

To help prevent the fenced off sacrifice lot from becoming a mud lot, divide it into about three smaller lots and seed them to a rugged grass such as K31 tall fescue. Now you have the opportunity to rotate cows from plot to plot. This reduces the risk of sacrifice lots being trampled to death and it gives the lots time to rest and recover.

These sacrifice areas are not intended to be grazing areas, so don't be concerned about seeding a grass that is palatable to cows. The main thing we want from these sacrific lots is a healthy, dry sodded area where cows can rest comfortably.

Back to the pasture area.

Rather than going to the expense and effort of reseeding, risking erosion and seeding failure, simply try to encourage what is already present. You could be pleasantly surprised with the results.

Start by controlling cows' access to pasture areas. Divide the pasture into a minimum of four plots so you can graze them rota-tionally. This can increase the yields of worn out permanent pastures 2 to 4 fold while also improving the quality of forages consumed.

Glenn's Udderings

In the interest of time, apply about 2 tons of limestone per acre plus some fertilizer. In the future, apply lime and fertilizer according to soil test recommendations.

Clip the pastures as needed to control maturity of the grasses and to control weed growth.

Later in the summer, evaluate the quality of the pastures to determine if more aggressive weed control measures are needed, to determine if new pasture species need to be introduced or if the plots need to be reseeded.

Protecting Cows From Sloppy Areas

Another very important concern is keeping cows out of wet, sloppy areas, in an effort to prevent udder, uterine and foot infections. We also want to supply cows with good quality water and we want to maximize their dry matter intakes.

One of the secrets of preventing areas from becoming sloppy, is to promote good drainage and don't let cows linger too long in any one place.

Rotating sacrifice lots and pasture areas keeps cows on the move and helps to protect the sod. Gating cows in the pasture until it is time for them to go to the barn helps prevent the development of muddy loitering areas close to the barn. A concrete or solid surfaced barnyard also helps. So do elevated, well-drained, hard-surfaced cow lanes.

Cows appreciate water and shade. However, shade areas in pastures often end up as infectious mud holes. They also discourage cows from grazing. Thus, all things considered, providing shade for cows on pasture may not be a good idea.

Similar comments can be made about providing water to cows on pasture. Water in some streams may be unfit for cows to drink. Because of this, some farmers are fencing cows out of streams, and they are piping water to the pasture.

If the watering sites are stationary, they too can become infectious mud holes. To get around this problem, some farmers are using portable waterers; others are talking about putting drinking cups on "tank wagons" and hauling water to cows on pasture.

The other option is to limit the time cows are pastured and bring them to the barn where they have water, shade, feed and a clean place to lie down. Don't turn cows out to pasture for long periods of time and force them to walk to the barn for water for a number of reasons. Once at the barn they'll stay at the barn and dry matter intakes will suffer unless there is feed at the barn. If cows linger at the barn, they'll turn it into a mud hole.

Some pasture areas contain wet, swampy areas, spring runs, etc. Fence cows away from these areas, so you can control when and how long cows have access to them.

If you are looking for ways to provide more grazing for cows in summer, consider grazing some of your hay fields. Or, plant a summer annual such as sudangrass or a sorghum sudan hybrid.

As you pasture cows, remember that feeds and feed quality are constantly changing. Sharp management of pastures will minimize these changes, but you will still need to watch cows closely. Monitor their intakes, milk production, body condition and conception rates closely, and work closely with your nutritionist and veterinarian.

Regional Veal Convention Set

ROARING BRANCH (Tioga Co.) — The third regional veal convention, sponsored by the Pennsylvania and New York Veal Producer associations is to be held in Williamsport, on April 22 and 23, at the Genetti Hotel and Convention Center.

The agenda has been broadened to include more trade show hours and a variety of speakers who will give their presentations twice for the convenience of the attendees.

Speakers who will be added their expertise to the convention are Cynthia Boyer-Blakeslee, an attorney from Lancaster County, who will speak on "The Farmer Has Rights, Too!", and Ken Cheatham, executive director of the American Veal Association.

The Friday night banquet speaker is Dr. Harry Rozmiarek, DVM, Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Rozmiarek is the director of Academic Programs and External Affairs in Laboratory Animal Medicine for the University of Pennsylvania. He will be speaking on the topic, "Animal Care and Use from Different Viewpoints."

A veterinarian panel is being assembled to discuss vaccinations and preventative medicine followed by a question and answer session.

Dr. Donald Redman from Ohio State University, and Dr. Todd Smith and Dr. Richard Sommers, practicing veterinarians specializing in veal from Ohio and Indiana, respectively, are three of the experts who are to be available to answer questions and take part in this panel.

Meals are again a focal point of the convention. The veal for the Friday night banquet will be provided by Venuto Veal and Lamb. San Giorgio Pasta Corporation from Hershey, has donated pasta for the luncheon on Saturday and Catelli Brothers is providing the veal. A sponsored breakfast buffet is being planned for all attendees.

The traditional quilt and clock will be auctioned, and there will be door prizes, gifts, and much information for anyone interested in the veal industry.

In addition, there will be a grand finale to end the show Saturday with door prizes and special presentations.

The contact person for convention information is Carol Jones, RD#1, Box 144, Roaring Branch, PA 17765; phone: (717) 673-8287.

New Classification Programs Provide Greater Flexibility

BRATTLEBORO, VT. — Starting August 1, Holstein breeders will have a range of choices in the way their herds are classified.

The goal of the Holstein Association's new approach is to tailor classification to the individual farm, based on the breeder's needs.

There are six different programs, all with their own characteristics.

Classic - This program requires all cows be evaluated and all scores go toward genetic evaluations.

Breeders receive official herd BAAs and may be eligible for herd recognition awards. This continues the existing Association program.

Standard - This program requires that all nonpermanent cows fresh less than 10 months be evaluated.

Cows with permanent scores and cows fresh more than 10 months are optional. Official herd BAAs will be calculated and herd owners may be eligible for herd recognition awards.

Basic - In general, this program requires all first and second lactation cows be scored.

All cows that previously were scored at least two times (at least once in the second or greater lactation) are optional Cows with permanent scores and cows fresh more than 10 months are optional.

Limited - In this program unscored cows fresh less than 10 months are presented. All other cows may be presented on an optional basis.

Herd owners are allowed to participate on an unlimited continuous basis if no optional cows are presented.

If optional cows are presented, the breeder must have participated in Classic, Standard, Basic or Introductory program within the last 14 months.

Introductory - This program is available to breeders who have not participated in classification in the last five years. First and second lactation cows fresh less than 10 months are the only cows required to be presented. All other cows are optional.

Breeder's choice - This special program is available when a breeder agrees to participate in the Classic, Standard or Basic programs programs on a regular basis. The breeder is allowed to select the cows presented. None of the scores assigned can be used for genetic evaluations.

Classification applications will soon be available for the August evaluations and should be returned to the Association by June 1.

Providing information that can assist dairy producers to breed, develop and market higher-producing cows is the goal of herd evaluation. It is the Association's intent to increase the number of breeders who wish to take advantage of the benefits of classification on a regular basis.

For full information on the new programs, call Member Service toll-free 1-800-952-5200.

The Longer You Wait To Control Quackgrass, The More It Will Cost You.

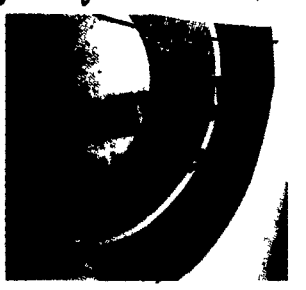
A wise man once said, "He who hesitates is lost." That's why it makes sense to stop quackgrass early with Roundup® herbicide.

WAITING CAN COST YOU MONEY.

Rescue treatments can cost up to twice as much as Roundup. Even then, they don't deliver the same complete, consistent control.

WAITING CAN COST YOU YIELD.

If you wait until your corn is up to control quackgrass, you've already lost yield. In fact, tests show that waiting to control quackgrass can cost you up to 14 bushels per acre. That's because quackgrass is an aggressive competitor for soil moisture and plant nutrients.



DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE.

This year, stop quackgrass before it robs you of yield and profit. Ask your dealer for the early, economical control of Roundup herbicide.

Always read and follow label for Roundup herbicide. Roundup® is a registered trademark of Monsanto Company © 1994 Monsanto Company RUP-4-2082

A Trip Back In Time — Milk Peddlers Reminisce

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

It began with an article suggestion from loyal Lancaster Farming readers, J. Loren and Wanda Yoder of Belleville. Why not interview some of those who used to peddle milk in wagons. They even gave me names — Nelda Peachey of Allensville and Lester Zook (Wanda's dad) of Belleville. I knew it would be an interesting trip back through time, but it turned out to be a trip further back than I'd expected because Nelda said there was someone else I should talk to — Sadie Byler at Valley View Haven.

Sadie Byler Delivering Milk Somewhere Around 1916

Sadie Byler's quick mind and friendly talkativeness belies her 95 years of age. Born in 1899, Sadie delivered milk house to house as a teen during the teens after the turn of the century.

"We had a big square carriage with lines along the side (to steer the horse as they walked along side), side doors and windows. The horse came down Mechanic Street and we'd ring the bell. At the foot of the hill that horse (she told me his name was Frank) knew to turn around and back up and turn some more and back up. Then coming back up the hill, he went back and forth across the street (to different houses). He knew where to stop. People would come out with kettles, pitchers, what have you."

Sadie's milk wagon carried two 50-quart milk cans. They kept a pie plate and quart measure beside each can. "We kept nice, white cloths to keep the cans from sweating. If you dropped one on the floor, you used the other one," Sadie remembers.

Sadie said they offered whole milk, skim milk, and cream to their customers every day and Saturday evenings, but never on Sundays. The seat of their wagon lifted and there they stored extra quarts in case they needed them. She also said customers could pay cash or use tickets.

"The tickets were for $1.20, $.60, and $.30. They had circles on them and we punched holes to keep track. We charged 6 cents for a quart of milk, 3 cents for a quart of skim milk, and 24 cents for a quart of cream."

"Belleville was half what it is now," Sadie continued. "We went down Mechanic Street, Main Street, Trella Street, I'm not sure where else, and back. We finished up on Jenkins Street."

Sadie said she was 15, 16, or 17 when they sold out. When the men were busy, she delivered the milk by herself. Sometimes she took a little one along, but, she adds matter-of-factly, "It went just as good when I went by myself!"

There is one March 3rd Sadie remembers well. She's not sure of the year but there had been a terrible snow storm. Her father took the wheels off the wagon and attached sleigh runners. He traveled the back roads and, Sadie said, "There came a blast and blew everything over. Dad broke his arm. He went to the doctor the next day."

Sadie Byler married David J. Byler in December of 1918. They have 11 children, 36 grandchildren, 68 great grandchildren, and 6 great-great grandchildren.

During the 30-year span that Lester Zook delivered milk, he went from pulling a wagon to peddle the milk to delivering by car.

Lester Zook Delivering Milk During The '20s, 30s, And '40s

Lester Zook delivered milk for almost 30 years, beginning in the late '20s and early '30s for his dad. He and his brother pulled a large wagon through town selling quarts of Cloverleaf Dairy milk for 9 cents and pints for 5 cents. By the time he sold his business to Nelda Peachey around 1947, a quart of milk was selling for 19 cents.

"The wagon had four big wheels, about 3 feet high. The bed of the wagon was about eight feet long. We delivered every day but Sundays. The customers picked one bottle of milk out and put the empty one in. We sold whole milk and chocolate milk. Had a special formula from raw cocoa and made our own syrup."

Lester wishes he had a picture of how they used to cool their milk before bottling it.

"The top container had holes in it. It set on top of a cone shaped one (small end up). The cone was filled with ice and water. The milk ran out the holes in the top container and down over the cone with ice in it. It ran into a large container with a spigot. Then we filled the bottles."

Lester said they'd buy extra milk from a neighbor if they hadn't enough for their couple dozen Allensville customers. He said they also sold milk to Mrs. Laura Kennedy who made homemade ice cream. "She had a good ice cream business in Allensville," Lester remembers.

"We liked it (delivering milk)," Lester says. "Now semi-trailer trucks come in with it at the store. What a difference!"

Lester stopped delivering milk in the late '40s and went on to, at different times, own a general store in Allentown, type-set for the Belleville Times, and work at the Valley View Nursing Home.

"I guess I had too many jobs," Lester replies with a grin. "But I read stories of my grandparents and great-grandparents, and I can see how I got it honestly!"

He speaks fondly of his wife Amanda who passed away four years ago.

"I want to give recognition to my Lord, my beloved wife Amanda of 56 years, and out four children, for the ability to serve the church and the community for many years. Amanda and I worked together all our lives. When I was at the nursing home, she was the receptionist there. Those were the best years of my life."

Lester has four children, 11 grandchildren, and seven (soon to be eight) great-grandchildren.

Nelda Peachey of Allensville delivered milk during the 1940's and saw the coming of pasteurized milk.

Nelda Peachey Delivering Milk During The '40s

— Nelda Peachey's small, quiet house in Allensville contrasts with what I imagine his life was like when he delivered milk to his 100 customers. He lived (where this writer likes now) with his father, step-mother, and eight children — himself, three siblings and four step-children.

Nelda cooled and bottled milk in the old milk house that he says has a 100-foot well. He had a container that held 12 quarts of milk. They would fill one bottle at a time with a machine that would shut off automatically.

Ninety-five year old Sadie Byler delivered milk somewhere around 1916 to Belleville residents, offering whole milk, skim milk, and cream.

"Then we got one that would fill three bottles at a time. That was a great thing at that time," Nelda laughs. "We delivered once a day, never on Sundays. When the war came, delivery was Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Nelda said that during the Depression, some people came to the farm to work off their milk bill while some just couldn't pay and the bills were forgotten.

Nelda delivered milk in a Plymouth station wagon that looked much like a van does today. "We delivered in all kinds of weather. We hauled milk in the manure spreader because of the snow. Wouldn't dare do that now. We had rougher winters then, worse than now. Snow would be up near the telephone wires. We traveled through the fields. We got out somehow. I don't ever remember missing a day."

Nelda asked me if we were able to keep our drifting driveway open this winter. I said between us shoveling and our kind neighbors plowing us out, we managed. He laughed and said of our driveway, "If you can get up there, you can get most anyplace." After this past winter, I knew what he meant.

Nelda showed me his only remaining bottle from his Meadowbrook Dairy.

"We took them out by the truck loads (to get rid of). Never dreamt they'd be going the way they are now. We gave $8 for a gross (144), bought new. Now they

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

So much to do. So little time.

In other words, stand back out of the way if you see a farmer coming. Otherwise, you might get flattened.

I've always felt a love-hate relationship for spring's "wide-open throttle, full-speed ahead" fieldwork season.

How delightful it is to watch the fields green-up overnight, as pasture grasses and small grains wake from winter dormancy, pushing tender shoots heavenward. Clusters of tiny, infant leaves unfurl among the ragged, old stems of alfalfa clumps. And scattered chickweed stands that have hung out in old corn fields through the freezin' season thicken up into plow-choking carpets of thick, slick greenery.

At the same time, the sheer physical demands of trying to fertilize and lime fields, till and work ground, move seed, plant and start the first harvest of forage — while keeping up with all the regular daily milking, feeding and equipment maintenance - have farmers trying to cram 25-hours-worth of work into every 24-hour day.

On dairy and livestock farms, enrichment of the soils with manure becomes the most pressing chore, especially after this winter of endless snow and weeks of inability to haul anything, anywhere, out onto fields.

"Is that where they're supposed to be?" was the puzzled question asked recently by Angela, my teenaged teammate for the evening milking. One evening previous, the calves had nuzzled at the hand from atop a thick accumulation of winter bedding. Now, they stood a couple of feet lower on the concrete floor of the pen, looking much shorter and smaller.

Thick bedding packs were actually a bonus this year, generating heat to keep the cattle housing warmer, draining moisture off the top of the straw for drier conditions and helping to insulate water pipes and fountains. But you can get too much of a good thing — and most every keeper of livestock we know has an abundance of rich manure to enhance this year's food and forage production.

So much to do. So little time.

Potato-growing friends finally could hustle to their higher, better-drained fields, already several weeks behind schedule for tucking in the first seed spuds. Cool-weather lovers, potatoes perform best when planted early. But then, nothing has been done early thus farm this season.

One critical agriculture imput may be almost skipped entirely this growing season. Lime, that natural, organic, powdery white stuff that sweetens acid-prone soils, boosts the performance of fertilizers and enhances the growth and yields of numerous crops, is likely to be left along the wayside in the seasonal time crunch.

Lime spreading generally begins in the fall and continues right through the winter, whenever fields are dry enough to handle equipment without burying it up to the axles in mud. With a wet fall, 80-days of continual snowpack and ongoing April showers (April snow someplaces), liming this year was plain wishful thinking.

Now, liming is just one more trip across the field that farmers don't have time to make.

Meanwhile, we diehard gardeners are raking away old leaves and mulch, checking for asparagus and rhubarb shoots, probing for signs of winter survival on shrubs and roses, moving perennials and just generally reveling the earth's rebirth.

So much to do. So little time.

But, gosh, it sure feels great to get the hands dirty in the ground again.

Milk Peddlers

bring $50 a bottle." To seal the bottle tops, Nelda tamped in a thin cardboard disk that had printed on it Peachey Raw Milk.

There is one story that Nelda remembers clearly — the time he and Paul Civitts, another milk hauler, were arrested.

"We were fined for selling milk for 8 cents a quart. This was a cent or two below what we should have been selling it for. We went into Lewistown and had to get a lawyer. He never said a word and charged us $25 each."

I asked why he sold milk for less.

"We thought it was enough. It was too much for people to pay."

Nelda said he wouldn't be too fond of going back to delivering milk that way again, but he does like to see pictures of the old days. Nelda's wife Miriam passed away 30 years ago. Nelda has two daughters, Anna Margaret Yoder and Sara Yoder, seven grandchildren, and eight great grandchildren.

Are These Foods Safe To Eat?

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Rate your food handling savvy by choosing the examples that could result in foods unsafe for a person with a weakened immune system to eat.

• Teresa and her grandmother ordered hamburgers at the local fast food restaurant. When they bit into the hamburgers, they saw that the meat was red inside.

• Juan, who is HIV positive, wanted cooked shrimp to put in a cold salad. At the deli, he saw cooked and raw shrimp displayed together on the same bed of ice. Juan bought the cooked shrimp.

• Before Ina began to prepare coleslaw at home, she took off her ring and put it on the counter while she washed her hands carefully for 20 seconds using a scrub brush. Then she put her ring back on and went to work. She finished chopping the vegetables for the coleslaw and used her hands to toss it.

• Fred's grandfather had eaten his eggs sunny side up with a runny yolk all his life and had never gotten sick. He feels he has lived a long time and deserves to have his eggs cooked the way he wants them.

• Bill made a big pot of chili con carne for his noon lunch. After lunch, he turned off the stove and let the chili cool in the pot. Before he went out at 4 p.m. he put the chili pot in the refrigerator.

• Seo-Hyun wiped her hands on a dishtowel after handling raw chicken and before preparing salads.

• Jose was cooking a ground beef and green bean casserole. He put a thermometer into the middle of the casserole so that it did not touch the bottom of the dish. The temperature was 165 degrees F. Among the seven scenarios, Jose's meal was the only one safe to eat. Surprised? Here's what wrong with each of the above.

Teresa might be okay with the rare hamburger but her grandmother is at high risk. It's even worse to eat a rare hamburger than to consume a rare steak — there's more processing so more chance of contamination.

Juan should have refused to buy shrimp at the deli, the raw shrimp could easily have contaminated the cooked shrimp while in the ice.

Most of you probably discovered Ina's mistake — she put her ring back on which wasn't washed before starting to work.

Fred's grandfather is now more susceptible to food borne illnesses because of his age and needs to be sure his eggs are fully cooked.

Bill has lots of people sharing his mistakes. First, he allowed the chili to stand at a dangerous temperature for too long a time. Penn State's recommendation. Hot food needs to be refrigerated within 2 hours. The best growing temperature for bacteria are 40°-140° F (room temperature). Secondly, when Bill did put the chili in the refrigerator, he did it incorrectly.

Seo-Hyun's problem is an example of cross contamination. She didn't wash her hands before continuing with the salad. The raw chicken she handled earlier can easily contaminate the salad. If you have a food safety question please call Penn State Cooperative Extension (610) 489-4315 and ask for Annette Goodling. If you work with church groups or fire companies and would like to address food safety issues, Penn State Cooperative Extension has workshops available for your group.

When many of us were growing up, there was no "pasta." Of course we knew about macaroni and cheese and spaghetti and meatballs, but that was the extent of our pasta knowledge. Today there are about 600 different shapes, with new ones regularly being designed.

One of the most popular of modern foods, it can be served in a variety of ways and combinations, such as "veggies" and pasta, meat or poultry with pasta and an all time favorite seafood and pasta.

Pasta means "dough." There are two main types — dry or factory made with water and paste, and fresh or homemade with flour and eggs. Some fresh is available in the refrigerated section of your supermarket, but it is considerably more expensive than dry pasta. And occasionally some fresh pasta is frozen.

Although most pasta is made with refined durum wheat, some is made with rice, corn or soy flour. Others are colored and flavored with spinach, carrot or tomato puree. The different flavors and colors will help you make more interesting meals.

Many types of pasta are interchangeable, but some are more suited to particular sauces than others. For example, delicate noodles are compatible with light sauces or cream sauces, but spaghetti is usually enhanced by heavier sauces. Very large pastas, such as manicotti and giant shells are not as good with seafood as smaller shaped pasta varieties.

Pasta should be cooked "al dente" — not soft, yet tender and firm "to the tooth." Cooking times vary for different pastas, so always follow package directions. In most preparations, coordinate cooking times so that pasta and sauce are done at the same time.

Large pastas such as macaroni and spaghetti must be cooked in plenty of boiling water — at least a quart for every four ounces of dry pasta. Otherwise they become sticky. Miniature pastas, which do not require as much water, are excellent in soups and stews.

When pasta is cooked correctly there is no need to add butter or margarine to avoid sticking. One tablespoon of butter or margarine increases the calorie content by nearly 50% — from 210 to 310.

Contrary to popular belief, pasta is not fattening. Each five-ounce serving of pasta contains about 210 calories and one gram of fat. It is the rich sauces and cheeses we pour over our pasta that make it high in calories and fat. Obviously, a tomato-based sauce is less fattening than a cream or cheese sauce.

When cooking sauces, vegetables, meats or other foods to complement your pasta, and it is necessary to use oil, select olive oil, polyunsaturated vegetable oil or soft margarine. These oils are consistent with healthy diet recommendations from nutritionists.

Remember, too, that the amount of an ingredient used is important. One cup of grated parmesan contains slightly more than 325 calories. But if your recipe calls for one-half cup and this serves four or six people, you can still have great flavor without many calories. And you can substitute cheeses such as mozzarella that have fewer calories.

You'll enjoy your food more if you grate fresh cheeses instead of buying the grated ones. The flavor is fresher and more intense. In addition, you will have fewer calories and additives as well as less salt, fat and cholesterol.

Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off Set For June 17

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Rich with tender chicken and sweet kernels of corn, chicken corn soup is a Pennsylvania Dutch classic that's prized by many.

There are many versions of this hearty dish — some with rivels, some without, some with chopped egg, others without. For those who have a special recipe for chicken corn soup, the Pennfield Farms Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off will offer a special opportunity to show off which recipe is truly best.

The Pennfield Farms Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off is set for Friday, June 17, as part of the countywide 1994 Pennsylvania Dutch Food Festival sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dutch Visitors Bureau. It will be held at the Doneckers Expo Center at the ARTWORKS in Ephrata, where celebrity judges will make the final choice among six finalists.

Mindy Rottmund stirs up a batch of chicken corn soup in preparation for the Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off sponsored by Pennfied Farms.

The preliminary judging of recipes will be done by Pennfield Farms and home economist, Mindy Rottmund. The written recipes will be narrowed down to six finalists who will be judged on June 17. Last year, Pennfield Farms sponsored a Chicken Pot Pie Cook-Off.

"Chicken is an essential ingredient in many popular Pennsylvania Dutch dishes. Having a Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off as part of the county's celebration of regional food was a natural," said Tim Horn, marketing director for Pennfield Farms.

Those entering the Pennfield Farms Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off will also have the opportunity to help seriously ill children in the area. For each individual recipe submitted, Pennfield Farms will make a donation to the Make-A-Wish Foundation which goes toward fulfilling the wishes of children facing life-threatening illnesses.

Entries for the Pennfield Chicken Corn Soup Cook-Off must be postmarked and received by May 15. The semi-finalists will be interviewed by phone May 25 or 26, until they are narrowed down to six finalists by May 31. Those finalists will participate in the cook-off, vying for a total of three prizes. First prize is $300, second prize is $150 and third prize is $75. Awards will be presented at the time of judging.

All recipes must be original and not previously published. They should include Pennfield Farms chicken. The final judging will be based on flavor, appearance, texture, easy of preparation, and quality of ingredients.

Don't miss two of the earliest signs of spring — fresh picked dandelion greens and asparagus.

Dandelion greens should be picked soon after they first appear and always in an area that is free of contimnants (like the area where the neighborhood dogs are walked). You can use the small, crisp, pale greens alone in salads while the larger, firmer leaves are best used for cooking, or in salads with other greens. Avoid flabby, yellow or brown tinged leaves.

The season for picking and eating dandelion greens is very short if you're going to get young tender greens. Hand picking the greens is the best way to be assured of that they were harvested from a safe location. Picking your own will also help eliminate grasses and other non-edibles that are found in dandelion greens purchased at the local markets.

You probably have noticed that fresh shipped asparagus had appeared in local supermarkets since mid-February and will continue through June. The season might be longer if imported crops are used. Prices are generally higher for shipped products that appear first in the markets.

The month of April is always the time of year when you can pick asparagus from your gardens or buy locally grown asparagus. When buying fresh asparagus, look for smooth, round spears with closed tips. For tenderness and flavor, choose spears that are at least one-half inch in diameter. Avoid those with large, woody, hard, white bases. Fresh spears snap right away, aging spears bend. And avoid sandy asparagus - the sand is very difficult to remove.

To store asparagus, trim one-fourth inch from the spears. Do not wash until you are ready to cook it. Wrap them in paper towels and place in a paper bag. Keep in your vegetable crisper and use within three days. Dip in cold water to refresh them before cooking.

Asparagus is also nutritious, low in fat and calories. Two-thirds cup of cooked asparagus pieces has plenty of vitamin A, vitamin C and potassium with only 20 calories, .2 grams o fat and no cholesterol.

Although asparagus is often associated with fancy restaurants, you don't need to be a highly-skilled chef to prepare it in your own kitchen. As a rule of thumb, prepare one-half pound (six to eight spears) of asparagus per person.

To prepare on the stovetop, place asparagus in a boiling pot of water upright so that the stems are boiled and the tips are steamed. Boil eight to ten minutes or until tender — but still slightly crunchy. Lift the asparagus out gently with tongs and place on a serving dish.

To prepare in the microwave, snap off the bottoms of one pound of asparagus, place in a covered 2 quart glass bowl with ¼ cup water and cook six to seven minutes or until crisp. Turn the vegetables half-way through. Let stand 3 minutes, then serve.

Serve asparagus as you would other vegetables. Use it to spice up vegetable and pasta salads, grain dishes and stir-frys. It's especially beautiful on a bed of fresh salad greens with red pepper garnish and no-fat vinaigrette dressing. Or try something different like asparagus, mushrooms in a light sauce over pasta.

Students To Explore Ephrata Cloister Living

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Summer "Discovery Days" will be offered again at the Ephrata Cloister for fourth through eighth graders who are interested in exploring the contrast between the rural lives of most 18th century Pennsylvania families and the austere lifestyles of the Ephrata Cloister. Participants will also study the style and construction of buildings and learn a variety of crafts necessary to sustain life in eighteenth-century America.

Housed in a unique collection of medieval style buildings, the Ephrata Cloister was one of America's earliest communal religious societies. Founded by a German Pietist mystic named Conrad Beissel in 1732, the Ephrata Cloister was major colonial publishing center and a shining example of the religious toleration that characterized William Penn's "holy experiment." Students will learn about the evolution of the community from its beginnings to 1941 when the property was acquired by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and converted into a historical site.

"Discovery Days" activities include a walking tour of the town of Ephrata and "hands on" experience in wool dyeing, flax spinning and weaving, soap making, and candle dipping. Emphasis will be given to contrasting the differences between home industry and factory industry.

Discover Days will be held on June 21, 22 and 23, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. The registration fee per child is $10 and is due to the Ephrata Cloister Associates by June 14. Early registration is encouraged since class size is limited. For additional information, call Willis Shirk, Program Coordinator, at (717) 733-4811.

Pennsylvania Dutch Favorites

When Pennsylvania Dutch foods are mentioned, most folks envision such dishes as pork and sauerkraut, roasted meats, potatoes, gravy, and rich desserts.

These type of recipes were not submitted by our readers. But rice pudding, smierkase, oatmeal pie, and the following recipes definitely are Pennsylvania Dutch favorites.

Enjoy!

OLD-FASHIONED RICE PUDDING

1 quart milk
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup uncooked rice (not instant)
¼ cup evaporated milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup sugar
¾ cup evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix milk, salt, and uncooked rice in saucepan. Simmer 20 minutes. Add ¼ cup evaporated milk and continue to cook a few minutes longer. In mixing bowl, combine eggs, sugar, remaining evaporated milk and vanilla. Stir some of hot rice mixture into egg mixture. Return to mixture in saucepan and cook slowly until it thickens a bit. Remove from stove and let cool. Stir often while cooling. Mixture will thicken more as it cools. Sprinkle cinnamon on top when cooled.

GOAT MILK SMIERKASE

Use a large enamel pan with a lid for making cheese. Be sure to sanitize it with chlorine bleach and a thorough rinsing or by boiling water. Do not use metal pan.

Warm one gallon of goat milk to 72 degrees. Stir in 4 ounces of mesophilic cheese starter culture or commercial buttermilk works equally well. Crush ¼ rennet tablet and dissolve thoroughly in ¼ cup cool water. Stir into the goat milk. Rennet is needed for goat milk because it has a lower volume of solids then cow milk. Allow the milk to set covered at 72 degrees for 18 hours. Cut the curd into ½ -inch cubes. Allow to settle for 15 minutes. This helps release the whey.

Slowly heat the curds and whey the next 30 minutes. Heat the curds one degree a minute until the temperature reaches 102 degrees. Keep the curds at 102 degrees for 30 minutes (take pan off heat and wrap in thick towels to hold heat. Stir occasionally to keep the curds from forming a mass.

The curds will gradually become firm and lose that custardy texture on the inside. Allow to set 5 minutes.

Pour off the whey and pour the curds into a cheese cloth-lined colander. Let drain for a few minutes. Rinse with cool clear water if you want a less sour taste. Drain again. Place into a bowl. Break up any large pieces and add several tablespoons of heavy cream. Salt may be added to taste. This will keep in refrigerator for up to a week. Makes 1¼ pounds.

Fuel For You

DOYLESTOWN (Montgomery Co.) — How far would you get if you car's gas tank registered on empty? The car may sputter, then stop completely. By comparison, if you didn't replace your body's fuel a three or more times a day, your body would sputter, too.

Our bodies rely on three nutrients for fuel or energy — carbohydrates, fats and proteins. Carbohydrate is the number one body fuel — it is efficient and gets to the cells in a speedy manner. Every cell in our body needs carbohydrate to perform its duties well, especially our brain cells.

Carbohydrates are classified as simple or complex. In their simple form, they are commonly called "sugars." Glucose is the sugar which circulates in the blood and brings energy into muscle, nerve and brain cells. Glucose combines with another simple sugar - fructose - and builds a double sugar, sucrose, more commonly known as table sugar. In fruits and vegetables the contents of glucose and fructose depend on the species, ripeness, and state of preservation.

Glucose combines with another sugar, galactose, and makes a double sugar, lactose, a commonly known milk sugar to which many have in intolerance. When glucose combines with another glucose, maltose is created.

When glucose combines with many other simple sugars in foods, a chain is created. This chain is known as a complex carbohydrate or starch. Through the process of digestion, the starch is broken down into its simplest components, such as glucose. Only in its most simplest form can the carbohydrate be taken in by the cell and used for fuel.

Our body stores carbohydrate in the liver as a starch. We must however replenish the liver stores approximately every four hours in order to keep the blood glucose level stable. When our blood glucose level starts to drop, the chain of stored starch is broken and some sugar is released into the bloodstream to keep it temporarily elevated. We then need to eat a meal to raise the blood sugar level to normal and keep it there until the next meal.

Fats, also called lipids, is a group which serves as a concentrated source of energy or fuel. Fats do not dissolve in water which makes it an excellent nutrient for storage of fuel in the body (which is mostly water). Also the fat or adipose cell is able to store fuel in 85% of it and leave the remainder for necessary functions. By contrast, the stored starch can occupy only about 15% of the cell with the remainder free for other functions. So the storage of fats in the cell provides an efficient way to carry a lot of backup fuel. It is important to remember that carbohydrates and proteins not immediately needed by the body are changed into fat, delivered and stored in the adipose cell to be used in the future. Although the body has limited ability to store starch, the body can store unlimited amounts of fat simply by creating more adipose cells. So in a sense, fat cells are the pantry of the body.

The word protein was derived more than a century ago from a Greek word meaning "of first importance." It was the first substance recognized as a vital part of living tissue. Although protein can give the body energy, its main purpose is to give structure to cells, antibodies, many hormones and enzymes. Most of the protein found in the body is in the muscle tissue; the remainder is distributed in soft tissues, bones, teeth, blood and other body fluids.

Proteins are very complex chains of amino acids, such as tryptophan, aspartic and glutamic acids. The amino acids link together and form a structures like hair and nail tissue. Protein is used to repair body tissue damaged from the continual "wear and tear" or from injury or surgery. This is a function only protein can do because it alone has the building blocks of body tissue — amino acids. Protein is also used to build new tissue during growth, pregnancy and lactation. Finally, protein may be used for fuel if all other sources are depleted. However, it is not a good source of energy because amino acids require much processing. The body prefers using its carbohydrate and fat reserves for fuel. When the body does resort to using protein for energy, such as during famine, muscles and organs "waste" away.

Current dietary recommendations follow the body's needs for fuels. The base of our energy needs comes from carbohydrates (55% of total calories). No more than 30% of our energy should come from the concentrated fuel, fats. The remaining 15% of our calories coming from protein is not used for fuel but as source of amino acids. So when you "gas up" your body, choose your mix of fuels wisely.

Mary Martin writes that this and the recipe for Cream Pie are from her mother's handwritten notebooks from when she started housekeeping in 1923, and have very little instructions with it. Cook's Question

ANSWER — Evelyn Snooks would like a recipe for sweet cauliflower pickles. Thanks to Stan's Kitchen for sending a recipe.

Pickled Cauliflower

2 heads cauliflower
4 teaspoons salt
4 cups sliced carrots
1 quart white vinegar
1 cup sugar
½ cup dried onion flakes
2 tablespoons mustard seeds
2 teaspoons turmeric
4 peppercorns

Cut cauliflower into large slices. Place in a large bowl; sprinkle with 2 teaspoons salt. Sprinkle 2 teaspoons salt over carrots in bowl. Let stand, covered, for 2 hours. Rinse under running water; drain well. Combine vinegar and remaining ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil; add carrots. Simmer, covered for 5 minutes. Add cauliflower. Simmer, covered for 6 minutes or until tender. Crisp pack vegetables into hot sterilized jars, adding boiling liquid, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Seal with 2-piece lids. Process in boiling water bath for 10 minutes. Yield: 4 quarts.

ANSWER — Gerri Rottkamp, West Hempstead, N.Y., asked why her canned crushed tomatoes and sauce are very acid tasting this year. Thanks to Ann Daniels, Shartlesville, who suggests she add a pinch of baking soda to the tomatoes. It will foam; let set 5 minutes and taste. If it is still bitter, repeat process until results are achieved. Ann said she read this solution in an old recipe for tomato soup and that this works for her. Thanks to Karen Kinnane, Shartlesville, who writes that tomatoes vary greatly in acidity. The newer varieties tend to be very low in acid and the USDA has even issued warnings about being extra careful when canning these varieties because they do not keep as well. Gerri evidently used a more old-fashioned tomato. The acid taste may be corrected by adding from one teaspoon to one tablespoon sugar to a jar of tomatoes before or after canning.

ANSWER — Faye Detter, Mechanicsburg, requested a recipe for schmeircase cheese. Check the Home On the Range section this week for a recipe.

ANSWER — Kathy Szarko, Landisville, purchased a pound of chestnut flour and wanted to know how to use it. Thanks to Mary Cerami, Jamison, who said that chestnut flour is finely ground dry nuts that is used as a flour substitute in making Torten (tortes). Here is her recipe.

Chestnut Torte Cockaigne

Have all ingredients about 70 degrees. Sift:
1 cup sugar
Beat:
6 egg yolks
Add the sugar gradually and beat until very creamy. Add:
Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon or of 1 small orange
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup ground chestnut flour
½ cup toasted almond extract
Whip until stiff but not dry:
6 or 7 egg whites

The extra egg white makes a much lighter cake. Fold them lightly into the batter. Bake about 40 minutes in an ungreased removable-rim pan or loaft pan. Let cool in the pan. Spread with chocolate butter icing or bake it about 20 minutes in two 8-inch ungreased layer pans. Spread sifted confectioners' sugar or preferred filling.

Students Learn About Chicks, Eggs, And Farms

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

REAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Not many fourth-graders at Reamstown Elementary School live on a farm. But that doesn't mean they don't know anything about farming.

"I know there are 930 chicken farms in Lancaster County," Zach Rineer said.

He learned that fact by listening to Pennsylvania Poultry Queen Melissa Stauffer talk about chickens and eggs recently.

Melissa visited the school as part of the Ag in the Classroom program. She told about the 22,000 chickens her family raises in Ephrata.

"And she told us that eggs are good for us. They have lots of good things we need," Bobby Wertz said.

"Eggs have some fat, but we should still eat them because they are nutritious," David Bolar said.

Melissa wore a tiara and banner that shows that she is the poultry queen. Many of the students wanted to know how Melissa became poultry queen. She told them that she lived on a poultry farm, and had prepare a skit that told about the poultry industry and answer questions that a panel of judges asked her.

Melissa handed out recipe brochures of her favorite recipes using eggs and poultry.

Here are some words and definitions to learn if you would like to talk like a Poultry Producer. This information was prepared by Students for the Responsible Use of Animals.

Broiler — type of chicken raised for meat.

Broiler house — building that broiler-type chickens are raised in.

Brooding period — the time between when the chicks are one day old until they can be on their own without any extra heat.

Candling — shining a light behind eggs to check for cracks and other problems.

Chick — a very young chicken.

Clutch — the egg-laying cycle. The hen lays one egg each day for several days in a row and then does not lay for 1 or 2 days.

Comb — red crest on top of the head of most chickens. Roosters have large combs.

Confinement — keeping large numbers of chickens or other animals in cages or pens inside buildings.

Fryer — another name for the broiler-type chicken.

Gizzard — an organ located between the stomach and the intestines inside the chicken's body. The gizzard is filled with gravel and grit and grinds the food for the chicken. It serves as the chicken's teeth.

Hatch — the birth of a chick; when the chick breaks through the egg shell.

Hatchery — company that hatches chicks and sells them to farmers.

Hen — a grown female or mother chicken that lays eggs.

Incubator — machine used to keep eggs warm so chicks will hatch from eggs.

Layer — type of chicken raised fro producing eggs.

Poultry — term for all the different birds that are raised on farms. Examples: turkeys, ducks, chickens.

Poultry grower — farmer raises poultry.

Pullet — a young female chicken who has never laid an egg.

Rooster — male or father chicken.

Did you know that the chicken does not have teeth? To grind their food, the chicken has an organ called a gizzard, which is located between the chicken's stomach and intestine. The gizzard is filled with gravel and grit and is said to be the chicken's teeth.

After eggs are laid by the hen, they are washed and checked for cracks in the shells. This is done by a method called candling. Candling is simply shining a light behind the egg so that cracks in the shell can be found and so that the inside of the egg can be checked. A trained person watches the eggs and removes those that are cracked or have something wrong inside of them.

Next, the eggs are weighed and sorted by size. All of this is done by machines. The government has set strict rules about egg sizes so the machines must be exact or the producer could have problems.

After the eggs have been washed, checked, and weighed,

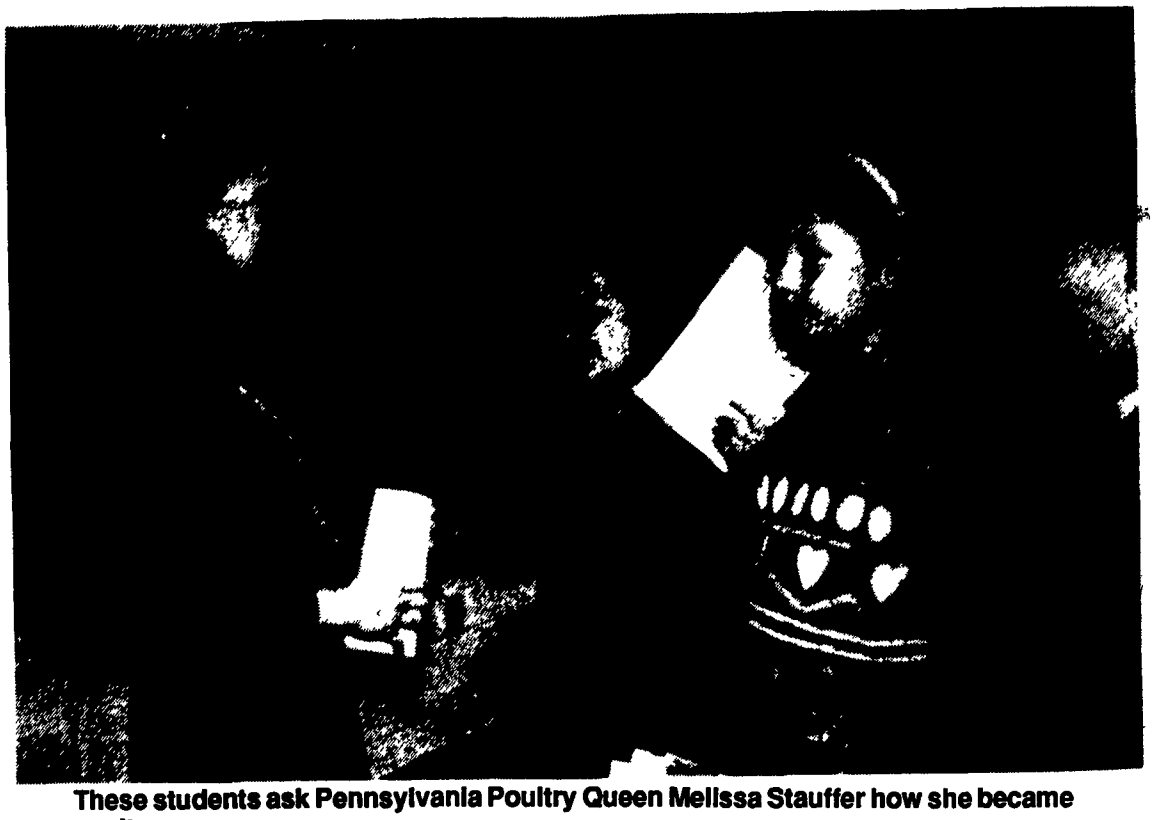
Holding a peeping chick fascinates these fourth-graders at Reamstown Elementary School.



These students ask Pennsylvania Poultry Queen Melissa Stauffer how she became a poultry queen.

Make eggs sunny-side-up, scrambled, hard-boiled, soft-boiled — any way possible — these fellows like them all. David Bolar, 9, center; Bobby Wertz, 11, right, and other classmates at the Reamstown Elementary School.

There are more chickens in the world today than there are people. And the number of chickens is growing faster than the human population.

Dairy Products Better Calcium Source Than Supplements

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Dairy products have an edge over dietary supplements as a source of calcium for children and women. The form in which calcium is consumed has a significant impact on the absorption of iron into the bloodstream, the study showed. Calcium carbonate, the form of calcium commonly found in supplements, reduced the bioavailability of iron by about one-third. But dairy products such as milk and cheese had very little effect on iron, with on exception: yogurt, which reduced bioavailability by about the same amount as calcium carbonate.

The study examined the relationship between calcium intake and iron absorption in young and adult rats, an animal model for human dietary studies, said Dennis Miller, Cornell professor or food science.

Suppression o firon bioavailability is a significant issue for individuals at risk of iron deficiency, such as children and premenopausal women. Women of childbearing age also are the population group most likely to be taking calcium supplements, Miller said. He emphasized that calcium supplements still may be appropriate for some individuals, particularly for women who don't consume many dairy products.

"Poor bioavailability is the prime reason for impaired iron status," Miller said. Most people in the United States eat between 10 and 15 milligrams of iron per day, and the body requires only 1 or 2 milligrams be absorbed into the bloodstream to replace iron losses. But only about 10 percent of dietary iron is absorbed. Anything that significantly suppresses iron bioavailability is cause for concern, Miller said.

"The real mechanism underlying all this is elusive. We think it's related to the chemical form of the calcium," Miller explained. Calcium carbonate, for instance, has a buffering effect on the stomach, which reduces the solubility of iron and therefore its bioavailability. Other types of calcium that do not have buffering effects, such as calcium sulfate, do not interfere so significantly with iron absorption. The interaction of dairy products with iron is complex and poorly understood.

"The effect of yogurt was a real surprise to us; we would have expected the opposite," he said. "We don't have an explanation for it." Yogurt is more acidic than other dairy products, which by itself should enhance iron absorption. But it also is a fermented product, and the bacteria in yogurt cultures may interact with iron. In addition, the yogurt contained added stabilizers, which might also affect iron absorption, although Miller said this area needs further research.

Other studies have shown that milk depresses iron absorption when added as a beverage to meals. But Miller pointed out that milk in a complex diet is an important source of protein and often displaces other foods that also have an inhibitory effect. The net effect on inhibition of iron absorption is most likely small. Supplements, however, tend not to displace other foods.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We had a pleasant surprise the Saturday morning before Easter. A basket of flowers was delivered to our house from a son and his wife who live in Atlanta. I immediately phoned to thank them.

Later in the day our mood changed as rescue equipment dashed past our house to a neighbor's farm. There were dozens of vehicles and rescue personnel from nine different companies. The only thing that we knew was that someone had drowned when a canoe capsized in the Cocalico Creek. Was it a neighbor's son?

Because of the high water, they finally called in three pieces of heavy earth-moving equipment to divert the water through another channel. Finally six hours later four divers were able to find the body of a youth under a homemade bridge.

Water can be a fascinating thing but also a dangerous thing. It is essential to know how to swim but even this isn't always enough to save a life. Over the years there have been several drownings in our area. Many years ago an 18-year-old fell through the ice and was killed. Then later a small boy fell out of a boat and could not be found.

I have taken a chance on a trip that included white water rafting. It was exciting but tiring as we leaped over small falls and big rocks. It got more exciting when I fell into the churning Juniata River. But, someone was there to throw me a rope and I got out safely.

Definitely more pleasurable was my experience as I went snorkelling in the Caribbean while on a cruise. I'd never realized the variety of beautifully colored small fish that live just under the surface. Of course, I swallowed a lot of salt water but it was worth the effort to see something new.

I have always been so very thankful that we were able to raise our six children along the Conestoga River and not have a serious accident!

machines package the eggs into cartons. The cartons are made to pad the eggs against bumps and jolts. The packaged eggs are then taken to a cooling room where the temperature is kept around 45 degrees. The eggs are then shipped to the supermarket in cooling or refrigerated trucks. At the supermarket, the eggs are kept cool in display cases so that people can buy them. Eggs will stay fresh for a long time. If ket in the refrigerator, they will stay fresh for four or five weeks without losing any of their flavor or food value.

Here is a recipe for Melissa's favorite pancakes.

CORRECTION

This recipe appeared in last week's column. The amount for the peanut butter should have read 1 tablespoon instead of 1 pound. Readers, please, when sending in a recipe, spell out the measurements of cup, tablespoon, teaspoon, pound, etc., as too many people use unusual abbreviations that may lead to mistakes. Also, reread your recipe before sending it to make sure every measurement is correct and no step has been omitted.

GRANOLA BARS

Melt together then add:
1½ pounds marshmallows
1 pound butter
¼ cup oil
½ cup honey
1 tablespoon peanut butter
Mix, then add:
9 cups rice chex (crushed)
6 cups old-fashioned oats
1 cup chopped peanuts
1 cup coconut
1 cup crushed graham crackers
1 cup chocolate chips

Makes two 9x13-inch pans, one jelly roll pan and one 8x8-inch pan.

This is a very good recipe. However since it does make such a large batch, you may want to cut the recipe in half. For best storage, they should be refrigerated.

Pennsylvania dairy royalty attending the annual dinner of the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc. at the Johnstown Masonic Temple, from left are Stephanie Singo, Somerset Co.; Amy Mearkle, Bedford Co., also state first alternate; Jennifer Grimes, Berks Co., state dairy princess, and Anna Calhoun, representing Indiana and Armstrong Co.

Allied Milk Producers See Value Of Dairy Promotion

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — Call it what you will — promotion, marketing or plain old advertising — selling the general public on the benefits of using real dairy products isn't always easy. In fact, it takes a great deal of skill and commitment as several dairy princesses proved at the annual dinner of the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, Inc.

It also takes money. So when a check of $200 from Allied (in addition to an earlier $300) was presented to each princess who had already met 75 percent of her commitments, the feeling these girls had was one of support from the nine-county Allied region.

Those princesses who were present were generous with their appreciation to allied. Anna Calhoun represented Indiana and Armstrong Counties; Amy Mearkie, Bedford, and Stephanie Singo, Somerset.

Susan Willey, Blair Co., was absent but also awarded the additional money. Jamie Wilson, Jefferson Co., and Rebecca Glass, Clearfield, were unable to attend the dinner.

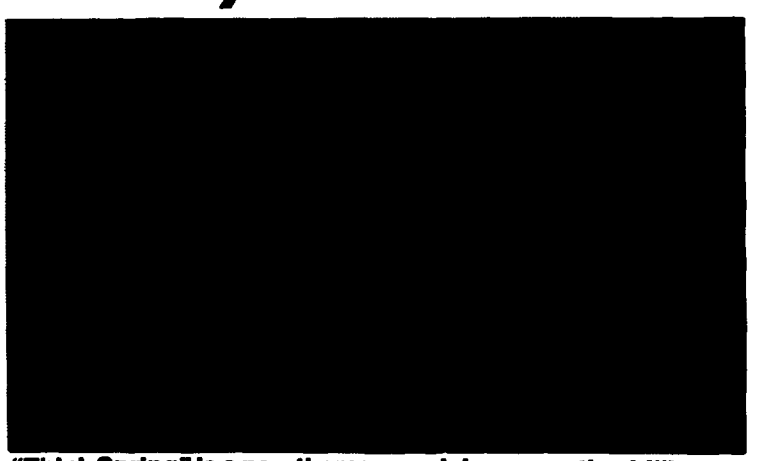
Special guest was state dairy princess, Jennifer Grimes Berks Co., a young woman, according to her inspirational address, who is capable of demonstrating, both to the public and its leaders, why the farmer is an unsung genius.

Mearkle serves as the state's first alternate dairy princess. She performed a delightful skit and showed slides of her promotion activites.

Dorothy Naugle, Hooversville, the Allied Dairy Marketing Specialist, also used slides for her activities report.

As Allied's only staff person, Naugle works with dairy promotion councils and princesses throughout the Allied territory to keep dairy promotions moving.

Various sized billboards and posters are a big-budget item for Allied dairy promotion. In fact billboard promotion is surpassed only by radio advertising which finds 7,210, 30-second, radio commercials aired annually over some 13 area stations.



"Think Spring" is a new theme on a dairy promotion billboard.

Those who see them can vouch for the creativity of these dairy billboards. Cute, appealing and informative.

Recently, according to Naugle, one was placed at the Jennerstown Speedway (Route 30, Somerset Co.). Pictured is the black and white checkered flag with a Real Seal symbol dead center. Officials proclaimed a "Dairy Night" at the track when it was installed.

Among other promotions taking time and commitment to bring high visibility to the dairy industry, were the Richland Mall promotion of serving dairy punch (16 paper cups remained from a supply of 2,700), and serving hot chocolate on New Year's Eve at the Johnstown Inclined Plane.

Allied has become an outstanding supporter of Pennsylvania Special Olympics in recent years, both monetarily and with on-site activities. So Chris Shovlin, the western development director of Pa. Special Olympics, gave a report and presented Allied president Joel Rose with a plaque.

Said Shovling, "Dorothy Naugle could teach Madison Avenue some things about advertising. She's a fantastic promoter."

He added, "We would like to think you are partners with us. It's a two-way street, but the backbone of Pennsylvania Special Olympics is the Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative."

Allied provided one-half tuition or $250 for 12 area teachers who attended "Ag in the Classroom" teacher workshops at the Penn State University. This year Allied is ready to provide full sponsorships, or $500 to nine teachers.

One of those attending the workshop, Cheryl Camp, a fourth grade teacher in the Purchase Line District, Indiana Co., was bowled over by her experience, never dreaming when she went how exciting it would be. She's enthusiastic, brimming with ideas for teaching ag in her classroom, especially hyroponic gardening. And even though a couple of early attempts have failed, she forges ahead, saying she's not ready to give up on hydroponics.

In fact, Camp said she would willingly volunteer to attend the workshop again if other teachers decline the opportunity.

Allied also reserves money to assist dairy promotion committees and other groups that support dairy promotion, including farm families who host school students, and tours. A chunk is also given to the state dairy princess program.

Always popular is the "13 Sundaes of Summer" ice cream giveaway promotion and office ice cream parties, held in conjunction with radio advertising.

That mobile vehicle, Allied's Little Red Barn, has more mileage to its credit than many private vehicles. Regular upkeep is necessary to preserve its refrigerated equipment, so refreshingly cold, dairy treats are available for folks attending numerous area agricultural events.

Thousands more dollars pay for some television advertising, materials with a dairy message for giveaways at appropriate times, school projects, the print media and so forth.

Dairy Promotion Educates Consumers And Representatives

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CARLISLE (Dauphin Co.) — The names Jan Harding and the Pennsyvania Dairy Princess & Promotion Services, Inc. are synonymous.

Now, add another name, Betty Reibson. Her name and face may be unfamiliar to most, but she is destined to become as dearly entrenched as Jan is in the lives of those who work in dairy promotion.

Jan is not retiring. But, responsibilites have increased since the inception of PDPPS. Betty was selected by the board of coordinators to assist Jan so that Jan may have more time off.

Betty is no novice to dairy promotion. She and her husband Milo own a dairy farm in Forkesville, Sullivan County.

In 1988, their daughter Sally became a dairy maid. The following year, she was chosen Sullivan County dairy princess and later, a state alternate. Betty became a full-fledged worker in county promotion because she needed to provide transportation and chaperone her daughter to many promotions. Betty also accompanied her daughter to the three-day dairy princess seminar.

"That's when I began to understand that we must promote our products. We can't sell milk just because it's good for us. People must be convinced," Betty said.

Betty continued helping with dairy promotion after Sally's term ended. In recent years, she became more involved with state promotion.

"I want to make it clear that I am not Jan's replacement. I am her helper," said Betty, who portrays a happy, positive outlook on life.

Betty describes her county as a place where one must drive at least an hour to get anywhere. It's primarily known for its lumber business and as a resort for tourists.

But the small number of farmers certainly doesn't let the county take a back seat when it comes to dairy promotion.

The county has a week-long celebration in anticipation of the June Dairy Parade, when the county dairy princess is chosen. Four-H clubs, other community clubs, and business make floats according to the theme chosen by the dairy promotion committee.

Last year, the theme was, "Milk—The Winning Ticket."

This year, the town is celebrating its bicentennial so the chosen theme is, "Milk—200 Years of Goodness."

The Lion's Club and the Dushore Fire Company put on carnival-type entertainment and a barbecue. Dairy events include making a giant sundae and a cow and goat milking contest for city folks.

During the community fair, milk samples are handed out at a dairy booth. A contest to dress animals and other fun events are held.

The celebration actually begins a week before the parade with an Open House at the reigning dairy princess's barn. About 85 to 90 percent of the people who attend are from non-farming background. The farmer brings out four of his best cows for a mock cattle judging contest. The visitors are given a few pointers on what to look for before judging the cows.

A petting zoo, door prizes, and a short program is given that tells a family history of the farm. People tour the barn where they view the farming equipment and are told how much it costs. Feed company representatives are on hand to tell how much silage a cow eats and how much it costs to raise a cow. A semen company explains the technique and the costs involved. The committee hands out milk and doughnuts while the visitors view displays set up to educate non-farm people.

In October, during the annual Endless Mountain Craft People and Flaming Foliage Event held by the local Chamber of Commerce, the committee passes out recipes and samples of dairy products. Another successful event is school band concerts where the committee hands out milk punch during intermission.

"This is a very successful way to reach the non-farming community," Betty said. "The people love it, and come back to ask for recipes. We are at an advantage because we only have one high school in the county and two elementary schools."

Betty is emphatic that all these events do not happen because of her. She said, "I'm not the big cat. I'm just one of the many people who help. Mary Lambert is really the person who keeps the program alive in the county. Everyone is asked to help whether or not they are on the dairy promotion committee."

Part of Betty's responsibilities as Jan's assistant includes helping the dairy princesses in their duties during Ag Progress, All-American Show, Farm Show, and coordinating events by making sure dairy princesses and alternates are chauffered to the places. She also has set up a computer program that keeps track of each county promotion to determine the winners for the incentive program. Eventually, Betty may work into more of the business part of program.

Sometimes Betty needs to remain away overnight. That means her husband and son need to assume her responsibility for feeding the calves morning and evening and other barn duties.

With the help of their oldest son Scott, the Reibsons farm their own 250 acres and rent an additional 100 aces. They milk 80-90 registered Holsteins.

Another son Randy will graduate from Penn State this spring. Sally, a junior at Lycoming Col-

During a district meeting held for the south central district, Betty Reibson, right, and Jan Harding discuss the responsibilities of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services.

Beth Heald Moore, the 1985 Pa. Dairy Princess, gives her daughter an early exposure to the dairy princess program. Beth is now a PDPPS coordinator for the south central district.

Heading dairy promotion for Dauphin County is Jay Kopp, former county dairy princess Tonya Scholl, left, and her mother Linda Scholl. Kopp, who is a dairy farmer with 125 cows on 500 acres said that being on a dairy promotion committee helps him see where the money goes and the consumer's perspective on the product. Kopp's daughter Jayanna is the present Dauphin County dairy princess.

Becky Sonnen, 1987 Pa. Dairy Princess, now works for Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association and teaches dairy promotion at PDPPS seminars.

Dairy promotion often includes county princesses and PAPPS personnel. From left, Betsy Dupuis, PAPPS; Jennifer Grimes, Pa. Dairy Princess; Nadine Houck, PAPPS; Amelia Saunders, Warren County Dairy Princess; and Maurel Raub, Perry County Dairy Princess.

Dads As Influential As Moms In Kids' Food Choices

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Most of us know that the bedrock of sound nutrition is eating a variety of foods, yet encouraging our children to develop eclectic taste is no simple matter. Because women have traditionally chosen and prepared the family meals, we tend to think that mothers exert the strongest influence over their children's food preferences. Not so, according to Annette Goodling from Penn State Cooperative Extension.

In a study of 500 elementary school children and their parents, fathers are at least as important as mothers as role models in determining the foods children will try and perhaps come to like. There is as much similarity between the food preferences of fathers and their children as there is between mothers and their children. Likewise, a father's knowledge of nutrition is as much a determinant of how much children know about nutrition as is their mother's.

And, contrary to popular belief, when parents were given a brief nutrition knowledge test, fathers have just about as much knowledge on the subject as mothers.

Other studies from the same research group have found that even though both parents were equally informed about good nutrition, mothers — who still do most of the cooking — expressed concern about the nutritional value of the foods their children eat. Working mothers said they felt guilty that they weren't making the kinds of meals they grew up with. Yet there is no evidence that their childhood meals were more nutritious than the ones they're serving their families today. Interestingly, mothers and fathers alike reported that they "felt better" when they "ate better." They attributed this to both physiological and psychological reasons. One of the psychological reasons was that they felt they were doing better by their kids. Perhaps it's time to give dads credit for the powerful role they have in influencing their children's eating habits. Whether a father will eat or not eat certain foods, the comments he makes about them, his non-verbal reaction, and his general attitude toward trying new foods make their mark at the dinner table. One strategy to consider is for parents to form an alliance to encourage adventurous eating. "Remember," says Goodling, "it's not only a matter of serving a variety of foods but also of setting a good example by eating a broad range of foods and showing an interest in trying new ones."

There's also truth in the adage that enjoying specific foods is an "acquired taste." Research studies suggest that children need to try a new food as many as 10 times before they learn to like it. In spite of the hectic pace most families maintain, 95 percent of the mothers and 82 percent of the fathers surveyed always or almost always ate dinner with their children. Using the evening meal as an opportunity to make a variety of new foods available in an atmosphere that encourages everyone to try them will do much to broaden children's food preferences.

Allied Milk Producers

President Rose's remarks at the dinner dealt mostly with the controversial BST issue. He told the dairy farmers in attendance, "If you're gonna' use BST, you better promote with greater effort your product." He said there's a cautious feeling about BST in the Allied Cooperative.

Comprising Allied's board of directors, besides Rose in Indiana Co. are Fred Shankle, Bedford Co. vice-president; Lowell Friedline, Somerset Co. secretary; Janice Lidwell, Cambria Co. treasurer; Robert Beatty, Indiana Co.; Dave W. Myers, Cambria Co.; and Marvin Thomas, Somerset Co.

Complimenting the filled pork chop dinner served by the Good Cheer Club, were dairy appetizers made by Naugle. They were slices from "Cheesie Roll", and index cards with the recipe were free for the taking at each table.

Kathy Hostetler, Cambria County extension agent served as mistress of ceremonies during the evening.

Approximately 250 persons were in attendance.

Dairy Promotion

lege, is studying in England this semester. She plans a career in the medical research field.

As the township secretary, Betty has an office in her home.

"As the kids grew up, I got involved in whatever the kids did. Now, that they are on their own, I'm still involved," Betty said.

One of her most fulfilling activities is serving on the Sullivan Township Scholarship Committee, which raised enough money last year to give 16 $600 scholarships.

The dairy princess program has expanded since its inception.

It was in 1983 that PDPPS was first formed to provide a uniform program to work with county committees in promotional efforts and to coordinate the dairy princess program. Jan Harding was appointed program director. In this position, every year Jan becomes the "adopted mother" to each state dairy princess. Jan coordinates the many promotional appearances and serves as the official chaperone. One of the main assignments in her role as program director is the three-day dairy princess seminar.

"Over the years, the emphasis has changed to concentrate more on nutrition, the dairy industry, public speaking, and being a knowledgeable representative of industry," Jan said.

The previous emphasis was on using make up and looking the best in preparation for the pageant.

"Although it is important to look your best, it is more important to offer training not for the pageant but for the job as a dairy ambassador," Jan said.

"The girls have become better trained and able to do promotions, and they are receiving invitations that former princesses never had the opportunity to do," Jan said.

Jan uses the term "Princess Power," which refers to girls who help in area-wide dairy promotion.

Each county princess has the backing of a dairy promotion committeed. Two sets of meetings in seven districts are held annually to train the committee persons in promotion and in helping the dairy princess achieve maximum exposure in working for the industry. In recent years, a dairy maid and ambassador training seminar has been added.

"We stress that the participants are not only representatives of the dairy industry but of the whole agricultural industry," Jan said.

At the inception of the dairy princess program, it was primarily the state princess's responsibility to do promotions, but now the alternates are much more active.

A publication called "Cowmunicator" is distributed monthly to all princesses and county promotion chairpersons covering activities. This is printed in cooperation with the American Dairy Association and the Dairy Council Inc.

Jan's expertise in dairy promotion was honed when she and her first husband (now deceased) operated Mapleville Farm in Brookville, a jugging and dairy store operation. After her husband was killed in 1974, Jan and her five children continued to run the operation until 1984, when it was sold.

Jan married Charles Ruslavage, a professor of health and physical education and a football coach at Clarion University. Two years ago, Charles retired. Now, Jan would like to spend more time with him and with visiting her children and eight grandchildren who are scattered from New York to Florida.

Cumberland County 4-H'er Top Dairy Member

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Melanie Dietrich, daughter of William and Susan Dietrich, Newburg, was one of the 4-H members that attended 4-H National Club Congress in Chicago, Ill. this past winter. Melanie represented Pennsylvania as the state 4-H dairy winner and was sponsored by Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations.

Melanie Dietrich, daughter of Bill and Susan Dietrich, Newburg, was selected the 1993 Pennsylvania 4-H Dairy National Award winner and attended National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Ill. Shown with Melanie is Ronald Moore, left, account executive, York Farm Credit, representing the Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations and Duane Duncan, Cumberland County agent. Melanie was also recently recognized for completing 11 years in the 4-H program at the 4-H dairy banquet.

Melanie recently was recognized for completing 11 years as a 4-H dairy member at the Annual 4-H Dairy Achievement Night. The 1993 4-H Dairy National Award Winner is a sophomore at Virginia Polytechnical Institute and State University as a dairy science major.

Over the years Melanie's herd has grown to an owner bred herd of 22 registered Jerseys. Her goal now is to improve it genetically. During her 4-H career, she has presented 24 presentations and 10 different demonstrations, completed project records on more than 70 4-H dairy animals, and has shown her animals at 49 county, district, state and national shows from 1984-1993.

While a member of the Blue Mountain 4-H Club, she was elected and served as social chairman, secretary, president and county council representative. She also served as secretary of the Cumberland County Ambassadors Club and vice president of the Cumberland County 4-H County Council. In addition to dairy projects, Melanie completed vet science, citizenship, dairy foods, and public speaking 4-H projects.

During 1991-1992, Melanie represented the dairy industry as Pennsylvania Jersey Queen and as Cumberland County dairy princess. During her reign as the Cumberland County dairy princess, she was able to meet with all the students in the Carlisle and Shippensburg school district elementary schools. She gave her 20-minute presentation 82 times to 153 classrooms with a total audience of 3,491.

In her 4-H story, Melanie indicates that by attending Citizenship Washington Focus and Pennsylvania Capitol Days she learned a great deal about the responsibilities of a United States citizen. She also indicated that being a counselor at 4-H camps, the Pre-teen Retreat, and serving as a club officer has provided many opportunities for her to develop her leadership skills.

Because of her several leadership roles in 4-H, she indicates that she felt confident in accepting the position of co-chair of a committee for the Virginia Tech Dairy Club and will feel confident putting her skills to work in the real world.

Her goal to qualify to go to the North American International Livestock Exposition National Junior Jersey Show with the Pennsylvania Junior State herd was realized in 1992. Her aged 4-H cow qualified for the national show and did well in her class.

In summarizing her 4-H career, Melanie believes that 4-H has helped to influence her long-term goal to stay involved with the dairy industry by showing her the different facets of agriculture and dairy science through her 4-H projects and experiences. She suggested that 4-H showed her that there is more out there than just dairy farming so that she knows that her choices will never be limited.

U-TUBE LAMP & SUPPLIES

"...the biggest advantage of these lamps is the economic savings over the life of the bulb. Once the initial investment is paid back, which will be done in less than six months, the increased electrical economy make such bulbs the most logical way to light..." MICHAEL J. Tapered hopper is interlocked then riveted together for strong construction made from 18 ga. steel. No danger of coming apart as spot welded construction. No thin spots as spun tapered hopper. The design must be good since our competition copied it. We don't spin our hopper. When you spin metal you get weak points. This is a critical area since the hogs are rubbing against it. Also, on our feeder if one spot does wear through it can be replaced. If a spun hopper wears out you have to replace the entire hopper

- One-piece seamless spun cover hinges back for easy filling.
- Front and rear catches hold cover secure.
- 6-piece tapered hopper swedged, then overlapped and riveted together for extra strength. No spotweld to break loose.
- 2"x6" tapered oak skids with heavy 11 gauge skid pulls for easy moving.
- Big 1¼" rake edge stops feed waste.
- Large feed opening so there's plenty of headroom for largest of hogs to eat.
- Feed control band double hemmed for strength and made from 16 gauge galvanized steel.
- Agitator rods securely locked to adjusting cone and double nutted on feed control band, providing positive feed flow of any kind of feed
- Door dividers made from heavy 16 gauge Galvalume steel.
- Heavy 11 gauge sectional trough ⅛" thick, riveted together from 12 sections.
- Extra heavy wide crossbar strengthens feeder and keeps it round, doesn't let feed shut off.
- Top ring has pipe top finish.
- Four swedges in each hopper ring for added strength.

Penn State Tests Mobile Concentrate Feeder

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A computerized concentrate feeder developed and tested at Penn State may help farmers to feed well-timed supplements to cows on pasture. The mobile feeder is designed to help dairy farmers cut feed costs through more efficient use of pasture.

"To sustain high milk production when a herd is on pasture, farmers need to ensure that their cows get adequate nutrition through grains or concentrates," said Dr. Dennis Buckmaster, assistant professor of agricultural engineering in the College of Agricultural Sciences. "But the timing of concentrate feeding is very important."

Grazing often forces farmers to feed cows concentrates at milking time, because grain feeders usually are kept inside the barn. "But feeding cows two or three large meals of grain each day upsets the cow's digestive system and keeps it from using nutrients efficiently," he said. "Offering grain or concentrates to cows while they're actually on pasture may help stabilize digestion and maintain high milk production.

"Computer feeders allow farmers to control individual cow rations, monitor feed intake, and break up grain feeding into several small meals during the day," said Buckmaster. "But they're designed to stay in the barn. The Penn State prototype feeder can be wheeled into the pasture, allowing the cows to eat feed supplements when they feel like it."

The prototype was designed and built by Mark Gardner, who received a master's degree in agricultural engineering from Penn State in 1994. Gardner received the 1994 Young Scientist Award from the American Forage and Grassland Council for his work on the feeder.

The prototype feeder looks like a short grain bin attached to a trailer. The feeder's stalls have sensors that detect identification tags worn by each cow, telling the computer to dispense grain or concentrate according to the farmer's ration plan for that animal.

The device was tested last summer in a joint effort of the agricultural and biological engineering and dairy and animal science departments. "We know the feeder works and that cows on pasture will use it," said Buckmaster.

Dr. Larry Miller, professor of dairy science, graduate assistant Douglas Hongerholt currently are gathering more detailed data on dairy cows' feed intake, milk production, and general behavioral responses to the feeder.

Researchers also are looking at ways to make the feeder more energy-efficient. "Because it would be used in pasture, away from easily accessible electric outlets, the prototype was built with two power sources, a diesel generator and an experimental solar-powered battery," Buckmaster said. "The solar modules couldn't provide enough power to maintain an acceptable battery charge with the current design, but if we can make the electrical system more efficient, solar power could be a very viable option."

Buckmaster is a member of Penn State's Center for Pasture Research and Education, a collaborative effort with the USDA Pasture Research Laboratory on the University Park Campus. The center brings together 18 agricultural scientists dedicated to lowering feed costs on Pennsylvania farms by improving the utilization of pasture.

Leath Receives Research Award

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Dr. Kenneth T. Leath, USDA Research Pasture Lab, Penn State University, has been selected by the Certified Alfalfa Seed Council as the Research Award winner for its 1994 Alfalfa Awards Program. The selection was announced by Council President Dean Urmston, W-L Research, Inc., at the 24th National Alfalfa Symposium held recently in Springfield, Ill.

The objectives of the Alfalfa Awards Program are:

- Recognize excellence among producers in the production and utilization of alfalfa.
- Recognize excellence in alfalfa promotion, research, and development and education.
- Recognize individuals who have made special contributions to the alfalfa industry.
- Promote and publicize alfalfa for its many merits in animal agriculture and as a profit crop.

Four categories were considered for awards: outstanding alfalfa producer awards from four regions of the United States, Alfalfa Extension Award for those in teaching or extension at the university or county level, Alfalfa Industry Award for individuals employed in various aspects of private industry, and Alfalfa Research Award for workers in all areas of alfalfa research.

Leath is the research plant pathologist and lead scientist on the nonchemical control of forage pests at the U.S. Regional Pasture Laboratory, University Park. Through his 26 years of dedicated service to the improvement of alfalfa, he is acknowledged as not only an authority on alfalfa diseases, but as an adviser and mentor for many alfalfa pathologists around the world.

He has written more than 100 research papers and numerous book chapters dealing with various aspects of alfalfa diseases and forage production.

Leath also is a tremendous contributor to the alfalfa industry through his participation in company seminars, symposia, training programs, and field days. He shares his research findings and experience with industry and producers through articles in various agricultural publications, as well as television and radio programs.

Leath contributes to the alfalfa industry in other ways. He maintains a collection of more than 1,500 fungal cultures, which he makes available to the seed industry for use in alfalfa selection programs. He also provides advice to alfalfa breeders on disease screening and has characterized more than 1,000 alfalfa lines for their resistance to foliar diseases.

Other winners include:

- Extension Award - Dr. Harlan E. White, Crop & Soil Environmental Sciences Dept., Virginia Tech.
- Industry Award - Dr. Bill Knipe, Forage Genetics, Inc., Nampa, Idaho.
- Producer Awards - north central region, Paul Meyer, West Point, Neb.; northeastern region, Tom Trinder, Fabius, N.Y.; southern region, Dane Mercer, Sweetwater, Tenn.; and western region, Casey Epler, Hillsdale, Wyo.

Dr. Kenneth T. Leath, USDA Research Pasture Lab, Penn State University, left, receives a plaque as the Research Award winner for the Certified Alfalfa Seed Council's 1994 Alfalfa Awards Program. The presentation was made by Dean Urmston, Certified Alfalfa Seed Council president.

Booklet To Help Small Flock Owners

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Edward T. Mallinson, veterinary medicine, at University of Maryland, and T. Milton Nelson, distance education, are co-authors of a new brochure titled "Good Neighbors — a Health Program for Small and Specialty Poultry Flocks."

The brochure was published by the Mid-Atlantic Cooperative Extension (MACE) Poultry Health and Management Unit.

MACE is an amalgamation of avian health and information professionals associated with land-grant universities in seven states, state departments of agriculture in four states, and ES-USDA.

"Good Neighbors" is intended for wide distribution to owners of small and specialty flocks, including game birds, waterfowl, turkeys, ratites, and purebreds. Feed stores will be a primary distribution point for the 10,000 brochures.

The publication's aim is to educate its readers on the importance of biosecurity in order to prevent the introduction and spread of serious diseases that could jeopardize the commercial poultry industry. The Delmarva broiler industry alone accounts for $1.3 billion in annual revenue.

3 SILOS AND UNLOADERS

WARNING!

An odorless, colorless, invisible--and costly-- forage thief!

You can't see it--and you can't stop it. Storage losses in forage can steal your valuable crop--how much is lost depends upon how you store your feed:

- Tower Silos have 3% to 8% loss
- Bunkers have 27% to 45% loss*

If the average difference in feed lost between tower silos and bunkers is 30%, then storage of 1000 tons will mean 300 tons MORE lost in a bunker. If silage is valued at $30 per ton, the additional losses from bunker storage would be $9000 a year.

For information on losses for all types of crop storage methods, contact the Crop Storage Institute for your free copy of " Methods of Crop Storage" and "Know the Facts."

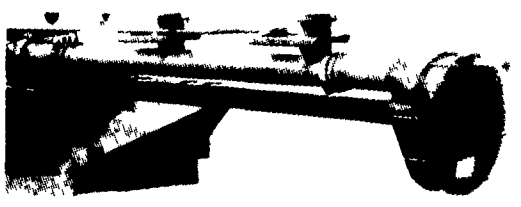
SHREDDER PUMPS



The Nesseth Two-point Shredder Pump has been designed to out pump them all! Nesseth pumps are designed to make quick work of your agitation, transfer and tank filling requirements and feature models in 8', 10' and 12' lengths.

The standard model has a 10 degree downward fixed 5" agitation port that has a rotation adjustment of 270 degrees.

"IT IS TIME TO ONCE AGAIN GET SERIOUS ABOUT STORING YOUR VALUABLE FEEDS!!!"

The recent "innovations" and temporary methods of storing your grains and forages are just not protecting your feeds like they should, nor are they really efficient.

Research and practical experience has shown that "the tower silo has never been equalled in its ability to protect your forage quality." And remember..." on most dairy farms, forage quality is the single most important factor affecting profit."

Contact us soon to be sure you get on our schedule to have your poured concrete tower silo constructed in time!

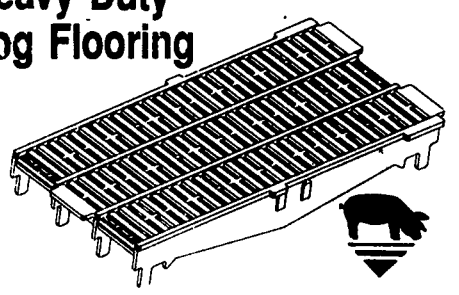
Polygrate™
Heavy Duty Hog Flooring



Time Tested and Proven
This style of POLYGRATE was first introduced in 1981. Over the years Faroex has continued to refine this product. POLYGRATE is one of only a few "World Class" floors that has stood this test of time.

Outstanding Traction
POLYGRATE'S unique "high-low" finger design provides outstanding traction for pigs of all sizes, while enhancing safety and comfort.

- POLYGRATE'S rounded corners minimize injuries. The edges are beveled providing a smoother, safer surface that promotes comfort, too.

What Does This All Add Up To?

- More piglets survive until weaning
- Less splay/spraddle leg problems
- Heavier piglets at weaning
- Better conditioned sows at weaning

TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM

Ford 7.3L/6.9L Diesel Pickup & Navistar S Series Trucks

Hypermax ENGINEERING, INC.

The HYPERMAX PULSE TURBOCHARGER SYSTEM utilizes the high pressure exhaust pulses to achieve faster "off idle" engine acceleration and vastly improves throttle response. This response feature is accomplished without the use of a wastegate, which detracts from performance anywhere but at low engine speeds, due to its inherent high exhaust back pressure.

Delaware Valley College To Present A-Day

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Delaware Valley College, set in historic Bucks County, will host its 46th annual A-Day country fair and open house on Saturday, April 30 and Sunday, May 1 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (rain or shine).

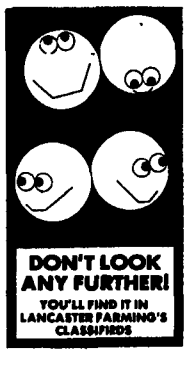
This event annually attracts more than 60,000 people.

A-Day involves nearly every department on campus. Tours of the campus classrooms, laboratories, greenhouses, orchards, the herb garden and the Henry Schmeider Arboretum will be available. An extensive flower show and sale will also be part of the activities.

All A-Day exhibits are planned, prepared, and presented by Delaware Valley College Students.

The students are dedicating this A-Day to the memory of Craig Hill, dean of the college. Hill died on December 17, 1993 after 20 years of service to the College.

A-Day will be held rain or shine on the Delaware Valley College campus located on Route 202 in Doylestown. Admission is free, parking is $5, and includes a program of events.



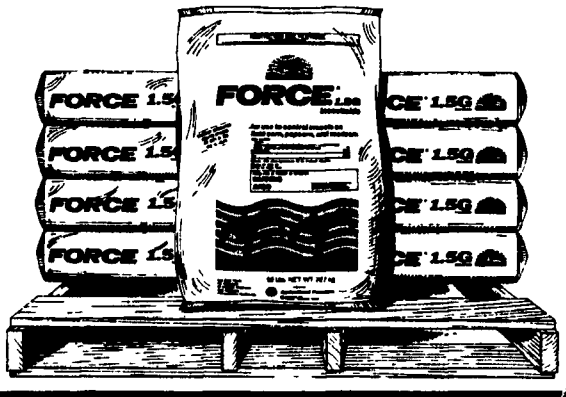
FORCE CONTROLS. In Developing FORCE soil insecticide, Zeneca Ag Products simulated and improved on the powerful chemistry found in chrysanthemum flowers. The result is the first pyrethroid insecticide designed for soil application.

Because of this unique chemistry, FORCE ranks low in mammalian toxicity, which means very low hazard to humans. In addition, the low water solubility and soil mobility of FORCE greatly reduces any risk of leaching or groundwater contamination.

CUTWORM APPLICATION RATES. Apply FORCE at 8 to 10 oz. per 1,000 linear row feet. The lbs./acre equivalent rates are:

6.5 lbs. per acre on 40" rows	7.7 lbs. per acre on 34" rows
6.9 lbs. per acre on 38" rows	8.2 lbs. per acre on 32" rows
7.3 lbs. per acre on 36" rows	8.7 lbs. per acre on 30" rows

FORCE may be applied in a T-band in front of the press wheels, in a band behind the press wheels, or in-furrow.



CONTACT YOUR LOCAL ZENECA AG PRODUCTS DEALERS

No other soil insecticide controls as much as FORCE® when it comes to performance against a wide variety of pests. Not only does FORCE control rootworms, it outperforms Lorsban 85% to 76% on cutworms according to 1992 field trials. Counter can't even touch cutworms. FORCE also works significantly better than Counter or Lorsban against wireworms and white grubs.

FORCE works in all weather conditions and won't interact with the rescue herbicides Accent and Beacon. It's easy to see why FORCE is a generation ahead—for the generations ahead.

NEW PEEL LESS BARN PAINTING

Barns in Lancaster and surrounding counties are ruined by overcoating! Resurfacing is the remedy!

A. RESURFACE by water blasting using your pressure washer with the latest dirty chaser gun or have it done professionally.
B. Into this resurfaced wood siding we first coat with the new high quality Kyanize Formula 77 stain paint for deep even penetration into the weathered barn siding.
C. Second coat penetrates first coat! Both coats are brushed with the finest of bristles to control penetrating film for eveness and thickness.
D. These thin linseed oil and urethane films peel less, since they are in the wood, promising more than double life.
E. At way below out of state competition cost.
F. Everything like many years ago, before peeling.

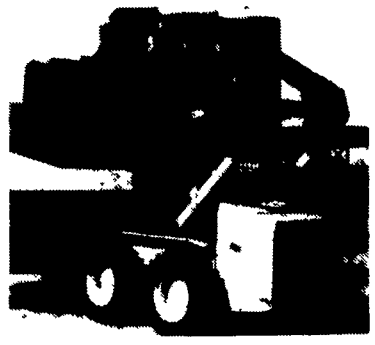
New Skid-Steers From Ford

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Three new-from-the-ground-up New Holland skid-steer loader designs from Ford New Holland have proven reliability and durability.

Modular chassis design simplifies maintenance and service. The cab and boom assembly can be hinged forward for full access to the engine, drive tain, and hydraulic system. The new Models L-464, L-465, and LX-465 long wheelbase skid-steer loaders share frame and boom specifications.

The "Super Boom" vertical lift linkage moves the payload forward as it rises to provide maximum dump reach at highest lift. "This, and the long wheelbase, give the new loaders superior performance on the job," said product manager Kim Robinson. "The long wheelbase adds stability. The longer dump reach lets operators load trucks or spreaders from one side where machines with less dump reach would have to drive around the vehicle and fill from both sides. That takes more operating space and increases dump cycle times. Extensive testing has proven these durable machines exceptionally tough, too."



New Holland Models L-464, L-465, and LX-465 skid-steer loaders from Ford New Holland are new-from-the-ground-up, designed for exceptional durability and easy servicing.

The Model L-464 is powered by a 30 HP gas engine while the Model L-465 and the LX-465 are powered by a 30 HP diesel. All are rated at 1,250-pound operating loads.

Dealer Is Recognized

BUFFALO SPRINGS (Lebanon Co.) — Satisfied customers earn Keller Brothers Motor Company Ford Motor Company's Distinguished Achievement Award For Quality.

Ford Motor Company and its dealers recognize that high quality products are not enough to ensure success in the marketplace. It is satisfied customers who will determine which companies succeed or fail.

In 1985, Ford Motor Company introduced its dealers to the Quality Commitment Performance (QCP) approach to measuring dealer performance on meeting customer expectations. QCP consists of a series of customer surveys and management tools designed to enable the dealer to gather and evaluate customer feedback throughout the ownership experience. The QCP Survey results are also used by Ford Motor Company to recognize dealers who achieve a superior level of customer satisfaction.

Keller Brothers Motor Company is one of a select group of dealerships across the country acknowledged by its customers for delivering a superior sales and service experience, that will receive the Distinguished Achievement Award for Quality. These winners are recognized by Ford Motor Company as setting the standard for excellence in customer satisfaction.

Distinguished Achievement Award for Quality winners will be recognized at a special dealer awards event hosted by regional Ford Motor Company management.

TAMPA, Fla. — Scott Kriebel of Stillwater, Pa., recently completed the first phase here at a Young Dairy Leaders Institute.

Kriebel is in business as a dairy producer with his father, Richard Kriebel of Benton. They operate a 65-cow dairy.

One of a hundred selected for the first-of-its-kind institute, Kriebel spent four days of intensive training undergoing the rigors of the business world. Participants were selected from 250 applicants from across the country.

Scott Kriebel

Leading authorities in the field of communications, corporate business, and management companies traced some of the factors effective in the marketplace.

Handling stress and conflict, personal goal-setting, and facing unusual opportunities scored responsive action in the dairy group. Participants tested their abilities to perform roles in a "mock town meeting" resolving conflicting views.

A simulated TV talk show brought the real world of controversy to the institute. The media exposure illustrated the need to handle public situations with professional resolve.

Phase Two of the Institute begins as the group returns home to serve in community leadership positions. Phase Three will occur when the group meets in Tampa next year for assessment.

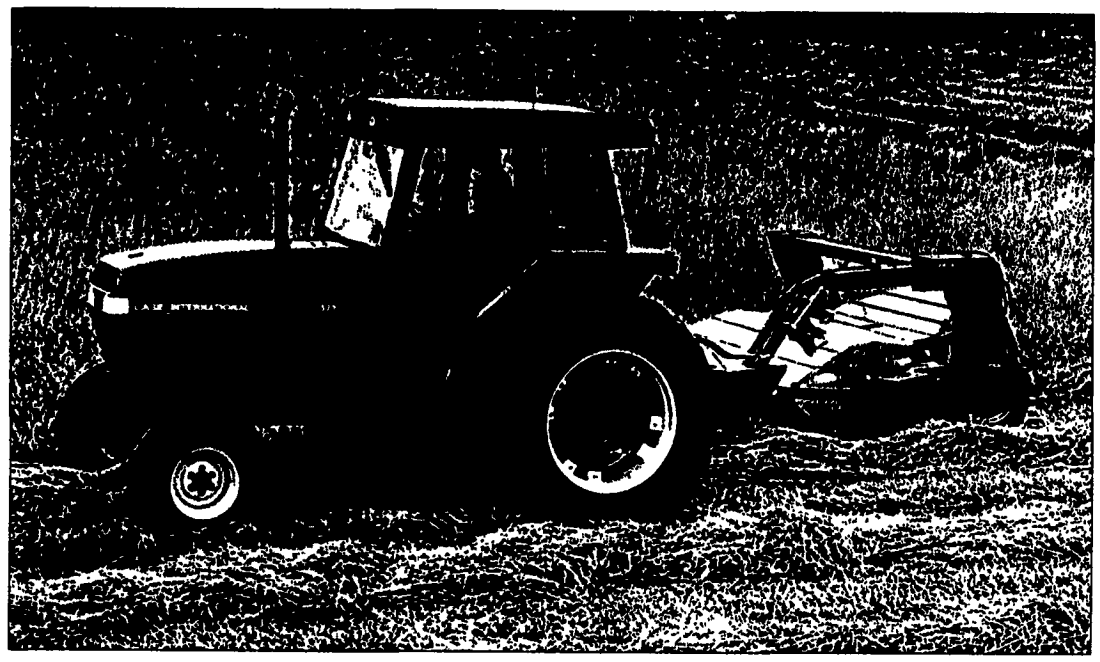
MAXXUM



Three years ago, Case International MAXXUM® set new standards for mid-size tractors. With the introduction of the 5200 Series, those standards have been raised even higher.

You wanted more visibility; we added exclusive all-glass doors. You asked for easier implement attachment; we responded with ground-level hitch control. You wanted more muscle; and we increased horsepower and durability.

Leadership never stands still, and the MAXXUM 5200 Series is still the best in the business.

SCRAPE, DIG, PULL, LOAD, MOW AND MORE

Estate owners, landscapers and farmers will appreciate the Kubota B-50 Series' wide choice of handy implements.

These include mid and rear mount mowers, front loaders, boxscrapers, backhoes, posthole diggers, snowblowers, even rotary tillers.

Kubota's remarkable B-50 Series compact tractors come with mid and 2-speed rear PTO. Optional Hydrostatic transmission. From 17-24 HP.

Kubota's optional "Bi-Speed Turn" system allows smaller and precise turns in 4-Wheel Drive, which makes mowing, and even loading more efficient.

Reverse air flow cooling directs radiator heat away from the operator for a comfortable, quiet ride. Low piston speed extends engine life.

The Kubota B-50 Series. Versatile compact tractors.

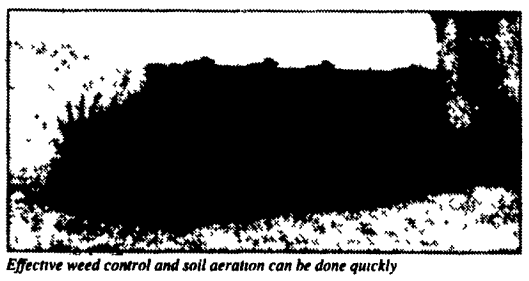
Rediscover The Rotary Hoe!

Farmers rediscover new uses for an old tool

Land hoe!



Effective weed control and soil aeration can be done quickly

Farmers across the country are taking a new look at an old tool, the rotary hoe. Using a rotary hoe is not only a great defense against weeds, it can also help meet compliance by bringing residue back to the soil surface.

Some innovative farmers have already proven the value of the high-speed rotary hoe in aerating their reduced tillage fields before planting. Used ahead of planting, the rotary hoe breaks the seal or crust that may have formed in the soil. This enables the soil to dry and warm up faster to give you a day or two jump in planting It also creates a mellow, uniform seedbed for better emergence.

Yetter has designed new models to work specifically in heavy crop residue These new models operate in row crops or bedded plants with equal ease and without implement modifications.

In many areas, growers are finding rotary hoes can help reduce wind erosion, while others are using rotary hoes to incorporate broadcasted wheat and other small grains. Taking existing technology and expanding its usefulness is what makes innovators successful.

The usefulness of rotary hoes is not limited to farm fields. You might be surprised, but Yetter Rotary Hoes are being used by ski resorts to break up the crusted snow on downhill ski runs.

However, even with all these new ideas, don't overlook why the rotary hoe was originally built. Each pass of a rotary hoe can go a long way in reducing herbicide applications by incorporating the herbicide into the weed root zone to enhance its effectiveness In fact, many preplant herbicide labels call for rotary hoeing if the weather is dry five to 14 days after application Check your herbicide labels for details.

There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers. Grass seeding attachment for 16x7.

Gehl has two all new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9 foot cutting width, the DC2360 has 8 discs, and a 10½ foot cutting width.

— Standard hydraulic tongue Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat

— High speed discs — Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
— Sturdy frame — Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability — 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.

GEHL

A sturdy cutterbar support frame extends beneath the entire cutterbar. This design shields the cutterbar from direct impact with rocks or other field obstructions.

Efficiency Is Our Newest Resource

IXL Technology Is New, Different & Better

Modern lubricants are about as good as they are going to get. So IXL solves the problem of friction and wear by treating the metal itself.

Treated metal parts are smoother, tougher, heat and wear resistant. More importantly, the friction characteristic of the metal itself has been reduced by more than 70%! This allows lubricants to do their jobs better and last longer. Which means your equipment runs better and lasts longer—much longer; as much as two or three times the manufacturer's expected "normal" life!

HOW DOES IXL ANTI-FRICTION METAL TREATMENT ACTUALLY WORK?

Simply stated, IXL is a pressure treatment for steel. Picture iron or steel as a sponge soaking up IXL when heat and pressure are applied for a period of time. IXL is actually attracted to the heat and pressure found in your engine, transmission, differential, wheel bearings and other working parts of your vehicle. The more heat and pressure developed by these parts, the faster and deeper the treatment soaks into them.

Used as directed, the IXL treatment is longlasting and there's no resin coating or bonded film which can peel or rub off; just bare metal with IXL soaked into it. There's no buildup on the metal surfaces and no change of tolerances. The treatment even remains effective if the metal is heated red hot—way beyond the point where your lubricants have failed.

Friction created by the working parts of your vehicle is always wearing away at the metal surfaces. After treatment with IXL the friction of these surfaces is reduced by 70% or more providing "bare metal" protection and allowing your lubricants to do their jobs much more efficiently. Since friction and wear are a continuous process, we recommend (based on actual use) that you always use a little more IXL when adding or changing oil. As a result, friction and wear are always kept at a minimum. And the metal parts continue to be treated while they do their work.

Brillion SUPER SOIL BUILDERS

The SUPER SOIL BUILDER has an expanded frame — 139" front to back — with three ranks of chisel shanks for smooth and easy flow of residue through the machine. The SUPER SOIL BUILDER is self-leveling regardless of working depth.

Other features include a 4"x4" square tube weighted frame with 20" diameter coulter slicer blades. The machine depth control hydraulic cylinder is equipped with an adjustable depth stop. Hydraulic hoses to the tractor are included.

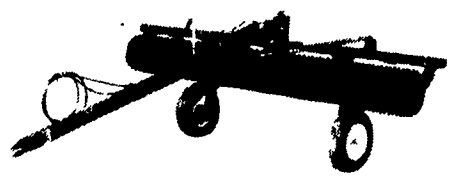
X-FOLD PULVERIZERS

The Brillion X-Fold Series Pulverizers are the answer for farm operators who need to cover a lot of ground...quickly. A unique folding mechanism reduces the transport width and height to a manageable size that will pass through restrictive bridges or down narrow roads. With its X-Fold configuration, Brillion is able to reduce transport height well below low-hanging utility wires or tree branches.

- Brillion 23 Ft. X-Fold With Scrapers $7,590.00
- Brillion 21 Ft. X-Fold With Scrapers $7,290.00



P10 SERIES TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS

Brillion's transport concept is new to the industry. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduces drawbar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transporting.

- PDT 14 14 Ft. With Scrapers $3,490.00

Now Brillion offers Pulverizers up to 46' wide to match your larger size tillage tools. Lighter weight, 20" ductile iron* roller wheels make it possible to widen the machine without drastically increasing the weight...and that means more firmed, clod-free seedbed acres per hour.
There's more reasons to buy Brillion... stop in and let's talk.

THE DAIRY COW — HIGH-TECH PROVIDER OF FOOD

Lawrence D. Muller
Professor of Dairy Science

The role of animals in the production of food for humans is increasingly being questioned by consumers and the general public.

Many believe that farm animals contribute to global starvation as they consume grain and other crops which could be used more efficiently if eaten directly by people. Others hold that land used to produce animal feed could be more efficiently used to produce foods for humans, and still others that animal agriculture is harmful to our ecosystem.

These perceptions clearly point out the need for those in animal agriculture to retell the story about the role and efficiency of our farm animals in providing high-quality food for humans.

This is particularly true for the lactating dairy cow, the marvelous ruminant animal that produces more food for humans (milk and meat) than she actually consumes as food that could be eaten by humans. The role of the ruminant in utilizing forages, waste, by-products, and other feedstuffs not usable by humans is an "old story," but it may yet be the "new story" as we hustle to feed our ever-growing population.

A recent headline in a local newspaper indicated, "The earth may be reaching its biological limits." Based on a state-of-the-world report on global environment, the article reported slowed growth in world food supplies in relation to population growth, and wondered whether we are approaching the planet's carrying capacity. The article further stated, "Human demands are approaching the limits of oceanic fisheries to supply fish and rangelands to support livestock."

This is "heavy" information for an animal scientist to write about in Lancaster Farming. Is it something we need to be concerned about? Of course. It tells us that the unique ruminant digestive system will play an even more important role in supplying food in the future.

The dairy cow, in particular, has always played a major role in our total food chain. But with population increase and the probability of less available feed grain, she will be even more important as the "high-tech provider of food."

Critics of animal agriculture often ignore the role of the ruminant, as well as other basic facts. Some land — forests, rangelands, and hilly mountainous areas — is suitable only for production of feedstuffs which cannot be used directly by humans.

Of the total land area worldwide, only about 11 percent is arable (21 percent of U.S. land is used as cropland), 23 percent is permanent pasture that can or should not be used for cropping, and 30 percent is forest. The latter

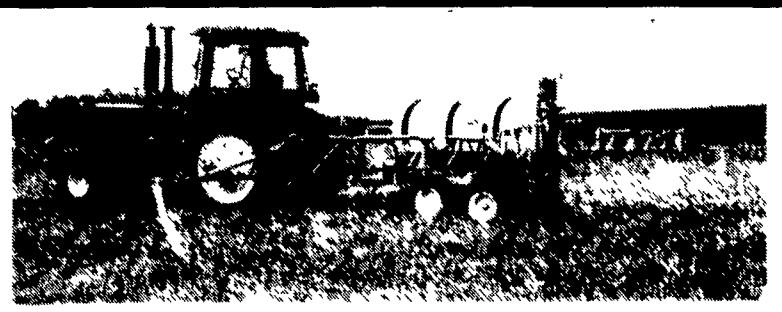
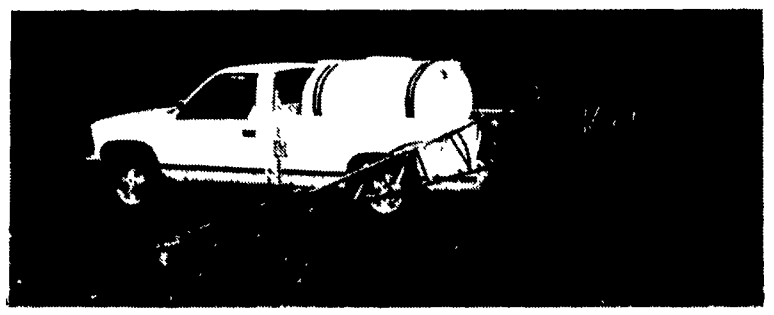
502T Pull-Type Sprayer



Establishing quality standards in pull-type sprayers began over 20 years ago with the Ag Chem Model 402 sprayer, and today the Model 502T is carrying on the tradition. With a formed steel channel frame for extra durability and a tongue that attaches directly to the axle for maximum pulling strength, the chassis of the 502T is a rugged performer. Axle choices include the single configuration or, for maximum stability, the tandem axle design. Axles are row crop adjustable from 60 inches to 80 inches and wheel hubs are the 6-bolt type. Wheel rims (10"x15") and tires (11Lx15, 6-ply) are also available.

Standard features for this sprayer include a loading platform and a 2,000 lb rated tongue jack. Boom Options: • 45' Hydraulic Fold & Level Boom
• 47½' & 60' Manual Fold Boom

SK400 Skid-Mount Sprayer



The Ag Chem SK400 Skid-Mounted Sprayer is an ideal system for a custom operator who wants to cover acres fast and efficiently It easily slides in and out of a standard pickup bed and is recommended for use with 3/4 ton or larger vehicles. When the unit is not being used, it rests on four conveniently built-in leg stands.

Our 47½ foot suspension boom features our unique 3 section quick-fold system (manually operated) and breakaway boom arms that automatically return to the spraying position after striking an obstruction. The boom is crop height adjustable, and its arms fold forward to rack along the side of the pickup bed. Hydraulic options include boom leveling and our new boom fold system.

DAIRY & ANIMAL SCIENCE
E-I-E-I-O
From Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State

two are suitable only for production of pasture and forage.

The movement back to pasture systems in the dairy industry has caused us to refocus on the efficient production of human food from pastureland. In some of our Penn State grazing research, we found that cows produced 13,000 pounds of milk/acre during a six-month grazing season, with a stocking rate of 1.3 cows/acre. This was more than 400 pounds of milk protein per acre, the majority of which came from pasture. In comparison, a 100-bushel-per-acre corn crop provides only about 120 pounds of protein for human consumption, and the biological value (protein quality) of corn is inferior to that of milk.

Only 20 percent of the solar energy transformed into chemical energy by plants is used directly by humans. Dairy cows can convert the other 80 percent into high-quality foods.

We can use our 100 bushel/acre corn crop as an example. One acre of corn produces 12,000 pounds of dry matter: 6,000 pounds of corn grain and 6,000 pounds of stalks, leaves, and cobs. Not all of the 6,000 pounds of grain would be available for human consumption, since 3,000 to 4,000 pounds may be inferior kernels and mill feeds. Thus, this single acre of corn can provide 2,000 to 3,000 pounds of human food but 9,000 to 10,000 pounds of animal feed.

A dairy cow could consume (as corn silage) the entire 12,000 pounds of the dry matter from this acre of corn and with minimal supplementation produce 12,000 to 14,000 pounds of milk (and more than 400 pounds of milk protein). Alternatively, the land could be used as pasture to produce the same amount of milk protein at an even lower cost or for other forage crops.

The dairy cow's ability to convert cellulose from forage and by-products to food energy also must be considered. The hypothetical acres' 100 bushels of corn grain contains about 4,000 megacalories of energy, but only about 1,500 to 2,000 megacalories are directly available for human use. The milk produced from this same acre, however, contains more than 4,000 megacalories of energy available for human use.

What does this mean? A dairy cow can use the entire corn crop produced on one acre of arable land to produce more protein and energy for human consumption than would be available if humans were to consume the corn grain directly. She can use the 75 to 80 percent of the crop not available to humans and produce food to complement the protein and energy consumed directly by humans.

Is the dairy cow really competing with humans for our food supply? No! Remember that the total pasture land area worldwide suited only for use by ruminants is twice that of the total arable land area. And this is only part of the story. In recent years, we have begun feeding more waste and by-products — from the rendering and grain processing industries; feedstuffs such as brewers grain, distillers grain, animal protein, and wheat mids; and candy and bakery waste. Not only is the dairy cow efficient, but she is also good for the environment because the by-products fed to her don't end up in a landfill. Furthermore, the animal waste can be returned to the soil to enhance soil fertility.

The unique ability of the dairy cow to transform nonedible material into high-quality edible human food with a relatively high efficiency enables her to make valuable contributions to human welfare, including:

- Adding to the amount of available food
- Raising the quality of the food
- Improving human health by supplying high-quality protein products
- Using products which cannot be used by humans
- Using material that would have been sent to landfills
- Using feed from land not appropriate for growing crops for human consumption.

Plant and animal cultures are complementary. A viable agriculture to feed the increasing world population will require efficient use of all plant and animal resources.

The dairy cow, with her unique ability to transform otherwise useless plant material and waste products into high-quality human food, is truly nature's "high-tech animal."
